Wolf Dog Winks at Ginger's Cheek

Everybody knows it is unwise to fool with a malemute—half wolf, half dog and rare in this mild climate—except Ginger, the seven weeks old kitten. He tweaks four-year-old King's ear with impunity; and the big husky only winks. They live at 2713 Victor, and are fed and bedded by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harrison.—(Jim Ryan Photo).

RCMP Seize Children From Doukhobor Homes

Lightning Raid at Dawn 'Continuation of Policy'

Forty school-age children were routed from their homes in the radical Doukhobor settlement of Krestova early yesterday and taken by RCMP to New Denver, where they will be forced to attend school.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said in Victoria last night the raid is "just a continuation of the government's policy to require school attendance by the Sons of Freedom children.

He declined to say whether there would be any more major raids like the one yesterday, in which some 50 Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen and welfare workers made a lightning-quick raid on the small, ramshackle settlement at dawn, capturing the children.

BIGGEST RAID

It was the first big raid on Krestova, and the largest ever made on a Sons of Freedom settlement.

All Sons of Freedom parents had refused to send their children to school despite the government's renewed drive for attendance.

No resistence was offered when police and welfare workers swooped down on the village. Doukhobor parents stood by quietly while their children were carried away.

It was a strange contrast to the past when rotten tomatoes and rocks were thrown at men who tried to serve notice the children must attend school.

CHILDREN HIDDEN

Police had suspected for some time parents were hiding their children in the village when none could be found in other villages.

They massed from other detachments early yesterday and descended without notice on the sleepy village before it was fully astir.

One welfare official said, "We moved in under the Protection of the Children's Act, giving the Sons no warning we were coming and no chance to hide their children if they planned to do so."

The children were brought to a provincial welfare branch at New Denver. The 22 boys and 18 girls will be sent to school with 34 other Freedomite youngsters taken from their homes in other Doukhobor centres in previous police and government action.

A school bus had been running to Krestova for a week but no children used it. Before this, notices quoting the School Act were tacked up in the village but were torn down the same day.

Several Doukhobors had stood in the streets and jeered at the bus as it went by the past several days.

One parent asked police to wait several minutes while a child ate her breakfast. Police returned to find the child ready to travel to New Denver.

Police said the children rounded up weren't the entire youngster population of the mountaintop settlement of the fanatic Russian religious sect.

Before Tuesday, Krestova was the only remaining Freedomite centre where parents hadn't been checked for failure to enroll their children in school.

'King of the Safecrackers'

Army, Church Both Attract Potential Thief

(When the author of these articles was a boy in London, Ont., there was no indication that one day he would switch suddenly from being a minister of the Gospel to being "King of the Safecrackers." Yet that's what happened—that, and much more in a colorful lifetime that has finally brought the writer, having paid for his misdeeds, to a snug cottage right here on Vancouver Island. Yesterday's opening instalment told of his boyhood, and his first jobs.)

BY HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

When the circus went into winter quarters in New Orleans, I found myself with nothing to do.

My feet were still itchy for travel, and a friend provided the solution. He had a job tending a shipload of mules, bound from the southern States to haul supplies for the British then fighting the Boers in South Africa.

I stowed away aboard his ship—and became a mule-tender, too.

On reaching our destination, I was told that, as a stowaway, I could only go ashore if I volunteered to fight with the British.

Here was more adventure, so I became a soldier.

However, before very long I was captured by the Boers who, having no prison camps, took me along with them wherever they went. They had another prisoner about that time, although I didn't meet him. When he escaped, the Boers pestered me with questions as to where he might have gone. I didn't know.

His name was Churchill.

Finally my captors handed me a saddlebag filled with food—but no horse—and put me on a trail that led to freedom.

HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

The war was about over so, with some others, I was given my discharge and put aboard a ship for London, England.

Called to Palace

There, somewhat to my surprise, we were all summoned to Buckingham Palace and I watched while Queen Victoria pinned medals on my companions.

Then, when I thought it all finished, the little Queen stepped from her dais, walked over to me, and put her hand on my shoulder.

"Bless my dear Canadian boys," she said, and pinned a ribbon on my tunic. That was a memorable day.

In my pocket when I came back to Canada was a little pouch, a souvenir from a Boer store whose owner had been killed, and where my outfit had based for a while in South Africa.

The pouch contained some raw diamonds, and though I had little or no idea of their value, a London, Ont., jeweler bought some of them for enough to set me up in a small business.

My plans for business had grown from watching the operations of a Detroit merchant, as advertised in the papers. As a result, I think I may have been the first to use installment-buying in Canada.

With my capital, I bought some rugs which I could carry on my shoulders. Going from door to door, I sold them for $1 and 25c a week, which I collected during my rounds.

The business prospered until it became necessary to have helpers, and therein came an unusual twist.

London's foremost pawnbroker was one Isaac Levi. With their father's blessing his two sons, Murray and Leo, came to work for me.

"Watch Herbie, boys," the old man urged them. "Watch everything he does, because everything he touches turns to gold."

Active in Church

It was during this period of business prosperity that I became active in church work.

Rev. Herbert McKenzie, just ten years my senior, had founded the Christian Workers' Church, offshoot of the Baptist church but purely an interdenominational, in Hamilton, the goal of which was to work with and for poor people.

So successful was his mission that he decided to open another branch in London. His successor in Hamilton was Rev. Peter Philpott, father of Elmer Philpot, Vancouver columnist and Member of Parliament.

My mother became one of the first members of Mr. McKenzie's congregation, and she soon persuaded me to join in the work. I had a touch for music, and a gift of the gab, so Mr. McKenzie and I would take a portable organ downtown, with one playing and the other preaching alternately.

From this, with the rank of deacon in the church, my interest grew, and my conviction that there was real work to be done for the world's unfortunates.

I sold my business, and opened a sociological mission on London's Whisky Row. Three of the city's leading citizens, Sheriff Cameron, T. B. Escott, a wholesale grocer, and a Mr. Workman, an ironmonger, were major contributors to the mission, and acted as my board of directors.

In Hamilton, Mr. Philpott's church was growing, but so was my mission. Consequently, when he invited me to become his assistant I declined. I didn't want to play second fiddle to anyone.

I wonder what might have happened had I accepted?

Navy, Air Force Called to Rescue

Northern Scotland 'Like The Arctic' As Heaviest Snow Isolates 10,000

WICK, Scotland (Reuters)—Some 10,000 men, women and children facing hunger and cold in the snowy wastes of northern Scotland scanned the skies anxiously Tuesday for planes bringing relief.

The Royal Navy and air force joined in efforts to get food through to whole communities cut off almost a week by the heaviest snowfalls in living memory. Some 5,300 pounds of supplies were distributed to 40 needy centres during the day.

DROP FOOD, MEDICINE

With snow still falling, helicopters flew non-stop over the bleak, sparsely-populated Highlands, dropping food and medicine to villages, hamlets and lonely crofts—small farms.

The 13,000-ton aircraft carrier Glory was on its way north from Glasgow to help in the rescue work with 2,000 gallons of fuel for the helicopters and its bakeries turning out mountains of bread for distribution to the marooned Scots.

Telephone calls from isolated communities seeking urgent help came in all day to this northern town which itself is beginning to suffer some food shortages.

A town official helping to organize aid said "the north of Scotland has become like the Arctic. Nothing like this has been known before."

The snow field—more than 12 feet deep—extends over the counties of Caithness, Sutherland and parts of Ross-shire. About 5,000 persons are estimated to be completely cut off.

Dockyard To Fire 140 as Over-Age

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A total of 140 civilian workers at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt will be discharged this year because they have reached the retirement age of 65.

Defense Minister R. O. Campney told Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, in Commons yesterday that 40 casual workers would be let out February 28 and the other 100 at various times throughout the year.

It has been explained that some of the 140 workers are well over 65 and dockyard employees are kept on past retirement age only when it is difficult to replace them.

Tragedy Mounts

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, father of Dr. Samuel Sheppard, died Tuesday night at Bay View Hospital from a serious respiratory ailment.

He was the third member of his family to die since July 4, the day his daughter-in-law, Marilyn Sheppard, was murdered in her bed.

His wife, Mrs. Ethel Sheppard, 64, committed suicide after their son was convicted of second-degree murder.

Ship Races To Land With Stricken Sailor

HALIFAX (CP)—The cruiser Quebec raced toward Bermuda Tuesday night to land an ill sailor after running into a storm that crushed two of her seaboats and caused her slight machinery difficulty.

The navy here said the Quebec ran into gale conditions after sailing from Halifax Friday for a three-month cruise that will take her around Africa.

Heavy seas crashed across her decks and stove in her starboard and port seaboats and swept her starboard gangplank overboard.

The cruiser altered course Tuesday to land OS John Louis Boulay for hospital treatment for acute appendicitis.

Present Tax Footing Will Be Maintained

OTTAWA (BUP) — Federal-provincial fiscal relations will continue for several years on the present footing, parliamentary sources predicted yesterday.

Members of the government and opposition parties, studying the prime minister's new proposals to iron out double-taxation problems in Quebec province, believed there would be no major upset in any other province.

They said Quebec probably will continue to be the only hold-out against a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

The new plan involved an offer by the federal government to release any other province from its agreement if it wanted to impose a provincial income tax. If it did, taxpayers in the province would get a flat 10 per cent reduction of federal taxes, but the province would forego tax rental payments.

Convicts Warn:

'One Screw Dies For Every Shot'

BOSTON (UP)—Two bazooka teams early today joined the army of police deadlocked in a threatened "battle to the finish" with a group of desperate criminals holding five guards and some fellow inmates hostage in ancient Massachusetts State Prison.

BOSTON (AP) — The leader of four dangerous armed convicts attempting to break out of Massachusetts State Prison sent out a message Tuesday night threatening to kill five guards and six other prisoners held hostage if authorities fired a shot.

Theodore (Teddy) Green, 39, notorious bank robber who boasts no prison is strong enough to hold him, said in a message to warden John J. O'Brien:

"For every shot fired at us, a guard dies. One shot, one gas bomb and one of your screws dies."

O'Brien quoted Green's message as saying if shots are fired at the rebelling convicts "then to hell with what happens from then on."

O'Brien said that no force is planned to subdue the revolt, adding authorities are ready "to wait it out for days if necessary."

BATTLE TO FINISH

Earlier, the rebellion by the four desperate convicts was described by a prison chaplain as apparently "a battle to the finish."

"The prisoners have made one demand—out," Rev. Edward F. Hartigan told reporters after his third visit to the isolated cellblock of the 150-year-old jail where the convicts hold the hostages.

Earlier, the 35-year-old Roman Catholic priest who has been at the prison since 1949, said the hardened, long-term prisoners—described as potential killers—were "not too much afraid of death" in their desperate bid to break out.

The four sent out an ultimatum that they be allowed to walk out of the prison and governor Christian Herter furnish them a car to carry them away "or there'll be fireworks."

USE FLOODLIGHTS

Prison officials, who had said earlier there would be "no deals," disregarded the demand and indicated they were ready to wait out the convicts.

Floodlights were turned on the cellblock at dark some 13 hours after the revolt broke out early in the day.

Police Arrest Two Suspects

Victoria detectives last night arrested two young men and charged them with breaking and entering, and possession of stolen goods.

Both men will appear in city court at 10 a.m. today.

Police said some loot of the alleged crimes was recovered.

Reds Rain Bombs On Tachen Islands

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—More than 200 Chinese Communist planes rained several hundred bombs on the Tachen Islands shortly after noon Wednesday, the defense ministry reported.

It was the heaviest raid of the civil war and packed considerably more punch than the air blows that signaled the invasion of nearby Yikiang-Shan Island Tuesday.

Although the ministry didn't say so, the new air strike could be the prelude to an attempted invasion of the Tachens.

The defense ministry said the attacking planes came from Red bases at Shanghai, Ningpo and Hangchow on the Red mainland.

They were an assortment of Russian-type bombers and fighter-bombers, including some jets.

The ministry said Nationalist guerrillas were still fighting at 2 p.m. Wednesday on Yikiang-Shan, eight miles north of the Tachens.

It said the guerrillas were "fighting bravely" against Communist invaders who landed Tuesday.

Liberals 'Socialists in Carpet Slippers'

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberals are "the carpet-slipper socialist party in Canada," Rev. E. G. Hansell said Tuesday night in the Commons.

"There is no more dangerous socialist party than the present Liberal party," the Social Credit member for Macleod said during the throne speech debate.

However, he was quick to add that Liberals are not socialists in the sense that the CCF party is socialist.

But the Liberals said "go easy, not so fast." While giving lip service to free enterprise, they bided their time to introduce socialist legislation.

Liberals let the CCF clamor for socialist legislation and then introduced it themselves, he said.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) interjected that was because Liberals "are smart."

Mr. Hansell quoted from a speech in the Commons last week by Elmore Philpott (L-Vancouver South) who had said his cup of jubilation ran over when the Progressive Conservative opposition criticized the government for not introducing a national health insurance plan.

The CCF for years has asked for health insurance.

Mr. Hansell said Mr. Philpott's speech is an example of how the Liberals have become carpet-slipper socialists.

With G. E. Mortimore

WHAT are Canada's national colors? If you say red, white and blue, you're wrong.

Cy Burley asked the boys of his 115th Battery cadet corps this question, in the course of their training. None of them knew.

Mr. Burley thereupon set himself up as a one-man board of enquiry into the people's knowledge of Canadiana. He had the boys ask a number of grown-ups about the national colors. He himself went around asking.

He found only one person out of several hundred who knew the correct answer. The knowledgeable one was a girl in his own office—and she couldn't remember where she had gathered the information.

Canada's colors are derived from her national emblem, three red maple leaves on one stalk, against a white background. Therefore Canada's national colors are red and white.

So says Mr. Birley. His information is drawn from his manual of cadet corps training, a Dominion government book.

And if we can't believe the Dominion government, whom can we believe? Anyone who has an answer to that question will keep it to himself, if he knows what's good for him.

Ice-Cycles people are looking for talent in Victoria, as they look for it everywhere. They want skaters aged 18 to 22 to try out Friday for possible jobs.

Scouts for the big show want to see all contenders given a chance. Privately, however, they wish that all young hopefuls would take a long, cold look at themselves before donning skates at the try-out.

It's no use for a girl to try out if she is 25 pounds overweight, or if she has (let's put it bluntly) knock knees. No matter how lovable she is, no matter how sweet her personality, she won't make the show.

It also helps if the contender can skate a little. She doesn't have to be a crackerjack. The show trains its skaters in its own way. But looks and figure count first, ability second. That's the way things go in this harsh world.

Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, however, spare some sympathy for people like me, who have knock knees and are no good on skates into the bargain. (Not much good off skates, either.) So count your blessings.

Man complains that certain stores, after a red-hot pre-Christmas campaign to sell toys, have now cooled off in their attitude toward the nursery set.

He says (try to choke back your rage when you hear this, men) that the stores shrug off orders for certain toys, and suggest that their customers come back next Christmas.

My informant didn't specify just what toys he was looking for. But it seems mighty unfair to me that some poor kid has to go without his atomic death-ray gun or his scale model guillotine for a whole year just because some toy merchant has settled down for a snooze in a rocking-horse and is too lazy to get up.

It's my duty to remind the merchants that Santa keeps watch on them all year round. If they are good boys, they get the trade next Christmas. If they are bad, the old gentleman spanks them in the pocketbook and sends them to bed with a big surplus of unsold toys.

Backers Believed Known

A Vancouver syndicate headed by Coleman E. Hall, sports promoter and hotel owner, and A. Donald Lauder, investment broker, is believed behind the offer of a reported $1,800,000 for the Growers' Wine Company here.

But Herbert Anscomb, managing director, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

"I know nothing about it," he insisted last night.

General Victor Odlum, of the firm of Odlum, Brown & Company, disclosed January 1 his firm proposed to buy the wine company for undisclosed clients.

NO CONFIRMATION

Reliable reports in Vancouver last night said the Hall-Lauder team was behind the deal. But the story could not be confirmed on the Mainland or in Victoria.

The offered price, which works out at $4.90 a share, was more than twice the value at which shares had been trading. Last summer the stock was as low as $1.65.

But as soon as the bid for the company became known, there were plenty of buyers at $4. Nobody was selling.

Majority of the 367,210 shares are understood to be in the hands of directors and officials of the company.

John Peden is president.

One Police-Fire Force

Double-Duty Plan To Be Discussed

Negotiations on a suggested amalgamation of the police and fire departments in Esquimalt will begin Thursday.

The amalgamation would combine the seven policemen and three firemen into one force under Gilbert Stancombe, present police chief. Each man would be trained for both police and fire duties.

Reaction of the policemen and firemen to the plan is reported to be lukewarm.

Amalgamation was discussed a year ago but did not receive serious consideration. Instead, firemen were appointed special constables, partly to avoid an increase in staff.

Municipal authorities hope amalgamation this year will again avoid a staff increase, but one worker felt "they may have to hire a couple of men."

Complicating the situation is the fact that policemen recently submitted their requests for 1955 contract changes, including a request for a wage increase to bring pay schedules into line with Victoria.

The amalgamation proposal and the police requests will be discussed when the police commission and the municipal fire and lights committee meet police and fire department union leaders Thursday.

Hours of work for firemen would be cut from 44 to 40 a week under amalgamation. Wages would be unchanged or slightly increased. Police wages and hours probably would not change.

However, the full effect of amalgamation will not be known until after Thursday's discussions.

Make Charges Clear, Fired Unionist Demands

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Gee, suspended last week end as business agent of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) for alleged communist activities, Tuesday night demanded that the charges against him be released.

"In a prepared statement, Gee said the charges should have been read to a closed membership meeting of the union Monday night.

He challenged the officials who filed a complaint to the IBEW's international headquarters which resulted in his ouster, "to let the membership vote on whether charges should be laid."

"This is the business of the membership, not the public," he said.

"I will fight this thing until I prove I'm in the clear. And I will, if given a fair trial. My record in the trade union movement is an open book."

Gee said one of the charges against him dealt with his attendance at the U.S. Canadian border Peace Arch "to hear Paul Robeson sing."

"So that makes 20,000 other people Communists, I suppose," he said.

Two paid employees and 17 rank-and-file members were also suspended by the union for allegedly working toward the "leftist cause."

Bert Marcuse, a non-member advisor, was dismissed from his position as research director. An appointed member, business agent Art Goy, was also listed as "fired" by the investigators.

Marcuse said he received a telegram from Alfred Terry, one of the two investigators, informing him his services were no longer required. He said there was no explanation given.

Union officials say there are no charges against Marcuse and Goy.

Charges of leftist activity were laid, however, against Gee and assistant Don Wilson, the two paid employees.

All face expulsion if charges against them are proved before a trial of Canadian and U.S. officials.

Irrigation by controlled flooding was used in Egypt's Nile Valley more than 7,000 years ago.

Railways Get Credit For Living Standard

Railways have helped more than all other factors combined to give Canada the highest standard of living in the world, Douglas C. Hartley, Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway superintendent, said last night.

Addressing the Victoria branch, National Office Management Association, Mr. Hartley said he believed it is beyond dispute that the country generally cannot be prosperous unless the railways are prosperous.

Railways have helped reduce transportation costs, and luxuries, taken for granted, would be available in small numbers if there were no links of steel, he said.

Mr. Hartley warned that railways must have an adequate return to make their "proper and utmost contribution" to the national welfare.

Mr. Hartley detailed the millions of dollars of annual expenditures by the Canadian Pacific Railway for rail and car equipment, fuel and other maintenance needs. He added that the cost of living is as real to railways as it is to everyone else.

Like other businesses, railways are selling a service. But railways are more regulated by law for the common good than any other business.

"Even government, the so-called servant of the people, has greater freedom in dealing with the public, and in the charges it makes for its services, than have the railways," he said.

Board Passes X-Ray Plan

A chest X-ray program providing for examination of secondary school students, teachers, school stenographers and janitors in the Victoria area, has been approved by the Greater Victoria School Board.

The program will be conducted by medical officers throughout the school district. A mobile X-ray unit will visit the various schools.

The board was informed that 155 cases of measles were reported in the Victoria-Esquimalt area between December 21 and January 17, of which 71 were school children. There were 69 cases of measles and 14 cases of chickenpox reported in Saanich schools in December.

Satisfactory continuation of the program of immunization against diphtheria and tetanus was reported in Greater Victoria schools.

Students To Hear Queen's Chaplain

MONTREAL (CP) — Canon Charles E. Raven, chaplain to Queen Elizabeth, will deliver a week-long series of religious lectures at McGill University beginning next Monday. Canon Raven, a former vice-chancellor of Cambridge University, will be one of several religious figures taking part in the campus "mission" arranged by seven university religious organizations.

Gulf Islands Franchise

Ferries To Compete

Bids will be asked at the end of this year for the Gulf Islands ferry franchise, Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi said yesterday.

He called the step normal procedure. The subsidy to Gulf Islands Ferry Co. and the company's contract expire December 31, 1955.

Mr. Gaglardi, who said withdrawal of the subsidy is under consideration, added that "if a non-subsidized service is offered to us, it would be very seriously considered."

Black Ball Lines, Coast Ferries Ltd. and the Gulf Islands Co. would be expected to bid for the franchise.

Black Ball and Coast Ferries favor a non-subsidized service linking the islands with either Vancouver Island or the Mainland. Gulf Islands Ferry Co. would continue present service.

Black Ball Lines has surveyed ferry needs in the area as a result of withdrawal of CPR service, which opened the way for Gulf Islands service and the operation by Coast Ferries of the Lady Rose between Island points and Steveston.

The Lady Rose may be withdrawn unless the Gulf Islands subsidy is eliminated. The subsidy is $24,000 and is to be increased by $12,000 when wharves at Crofton and Vesuvius Bay are completed about Easter.

Banks Have 'Pen Money'

The Canadian banking system is nothing but a "fountain pen money system," similar to that advocated by Social Credit, Alberta's Attorney-General Lucien Maynard said at the Crystal Garden last night.

Mr. Maynard is in Victoria to conduct study periods in banking based on a brief he presented to the parliamentary select standing committee on banking and commerce at Ottawa last spring.

Tonight's discussion is: "What is wrong with the banking system?" Thursday night the Social Crediters will outline their remedies.

Mr. Maynard last night reviewed the development of banking from its start in Italy.

"Today the bulk of money in circulation is bank credit," he said. "Your chartered banks operate a gigantic accounting system, and it is nothing but a fountain pen system."

He added that the Social Credit theory is to issue bank credit the same as the cartered banks are doing now.

"Gassy stomach embarrassed me" says man who loves his food.

"I'm a big fellow, with a big appetite. But after a good meal I used to have gas on the stomach so bad I couldn't help belching and burping. A druggist suggested Digestif Rennie Tablets. Now, after a big meal—I suck one or two Rennies. If you're embarrassed by burps and belches, try Rennies," writes William J. Cook, Waterloo, Ont.

Don't let sour stomach or indigestion spoil a good meal—suck a Digestif Rennie Tablet. Rennies are gentle, with a drip-by-drip action that neutralizes excess acids—soothes upset, gassy stomach. 25c at druggists. 89-4

Expert Advice Seems Wrong

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

For years now, I have always taken cuttings of black and red currants in the autumn. The book says that is the time to do the job, and I've always gone along with it, figuring that the experts must know what they are talking about, but I've never felt quite satisfied about it.

It just didn't seem quite natural to expect a cutting to put forth vigorous roots at a time when the plant is approaching a state of dormancy. The soil, too, is beginning to cool off in October, and by the time the baby roots are formed, the ground is definitely cold and usually soggy wet—sometimes even frozen.

On top of this, everybody knows that the leaves of a cutting play an important part in the production of roots, and while currant cuttings may have leaves on them when they are inserted in the autumn, they don't last very long, and are usually gone within a week or two.

LONG STANDSTILL

The system worked, after a fashion, and I've usually managed to strike about 50 per cent of the cuttings inserted, but they seemed to stand still all through the spring, when everything else were growing vigorously, and they never really got going properly until midsummer.

Last year, I decided to throw away the book and try taking the currant cuttings in the spring, just to see what would happen. The varieties were Boskoop Giant and Red Lake.

The cuttings were taken in early May, selecting shoots of the previous season's growth, about a foot long, and with about an inch of old wood attached. The ends of these were moistened and dipped in Rootone hormone rooting powder, the excess shapen off, and the cuttings inserted in a bed of rather sandy soil in a shady part of the garden, and watered in. They were, of course, in full leaf, and growing vigorously when cut off the parent plant.

NEVER STOPPED

The results were really surprising. I can honestly say that these spring cuttings never seemed to stop growing at all. They never looked back, and never lost their freshness. By early September, they were big enough to pinch out the growing tip, encouraging them to branch a little during the fall, and fixing them up all ready to spring into action as soon as the pulse of spring awakens them.

These cuttings, taken last May, are now nice little bushes, 18 to 24 inches high, and I think they will probably bear a little fruit this year.

I'll grant you that the weather was exceptional last summer, and it was seldom necessary to water the bed of cuttings, and I have to admit that the leaves of the currant cuttings were sprayed every second week with weak soluble fertilizer, but even at that, growth was amazing, and I figure I am a whole year ahead of the game through this unconventional treatment.

Trouble Seen In Okanagan

KELOWNA, B.C.(CP)—Overproduction of fruit is causing concern in the Okanagan's $25,000,000 industry.

A blunt warning that production will just about reach the saturation point by 1960 was issued yesterday by A. R. Garrish, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, at the opening session of the organization's annual three-day convention.

Schools Need 30 Teachers

A preliminary survey of staff requirements for September indicates that some 30 additional teachers will be needed, John Gough, municipal inspector of schools, reported Monday to the Greater Victoria School Board.

About one-half of the new teachers will be required at the elementary level, the remainder at the secondary school level.

Balls of Fire, Blasts

'Exploding Heavens' Have Area in Dither

SEATTLE (UP)—Widely-scattered reports of brilliant shooting stars or airplanes falling in flames had the air traffic control centre at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport in a dither last night.

"We don't know what's going on," the centre reported, "but we got six calls in an hour. Some of the reports were that a big explosion followed the flashes."

However, airport officials said there were no airplanes, commercial or military, reported missing or overdue in the area.

The reports came from the Walla Walla, Wash., and Pendleton, Ore., area, and one from Stevens Pass in northwest Washington. The state patrol at Pendleton reported to airport officials there that the lights probably were from flares being used either by geese hunters or by farmers attempting to scare geese out of their fields.

Some of the reports received here were that a big explosion followed the disappearance of the "shooting stars" or "plane crashing in flames."

Meanwhile, a mysterious ball of fire flashed across the sky over an estimated 100-mile radius in the Flathead Valley of Montana tonight about 6 p.m. Startled residents reported that about four minutes after the flash, a violent explosion was heard. One witness described the explosion as similar to film and radio recordings he had heard of the atom bomb.

Officials at the Great Falls air force base, the Helena filter centre and CAA report no aircraft missing or unaccounted for.

Sheriff's officers and others in the area are investigating the mysterious blasts.

Responsibility of Federal Government To Care for Jobless, Says Socialist

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government should assume responsibility for taking care of unemployed who are able to work, a CCF member said in the Commons Tuesday.

Joseph Noseworthy, York South, one of his party's chief spokesmen on labor, said growing unemployment has brought on the time for the government [illegible] ing such a responsibility, which it had proposed at the 1945 federal-provincial conference.

"The cabinet has repudiated its 1945 policy," he said.

Along with providing for those out of work, he said, the government should take steps to create jobs by increasing social welfare spending and stepping up its public works program.

Mr. Noseworthy spoke on the sixth debating day of the traditional Throne speech debate following the January 7 opening of Parliament.

From the maritimes in opposite political camps the House heard urgings for the promotion of industrial development in their area to protect Canadian production in the event of war.

Decentralization of industry is in the national interest, said A. B. Lusby (L, Cumberland) and Thomas M. Bell (PC, St. John-Albert). Mr. Lusby wanted a federal organization to stimulate Maritime economic development. Mr. Bell requested aid to New Brunswick in producing hydro-electric power.

Mr. Noseworthy said that in the speech from the throne at the opening of Parliament no provision for employable unemployed was forecast for this session except an increase in supplementary winter unemployment insurance benefits, subsequently adopted by Parliament.

PC Groups' Status Made Clear Here

Status of the two Victoria federal Progressive Conservative associations in the eyes of party headquarters in Ottawa was made clear yesterday when full support was given by the national president to the new group backing leader George Drew.

George Hees, national party president, wired A. deB. McPhillips, head of the new group, that a letter and copy of a report sent to president Robert Fort of the anti-Drew federal association was "dispatched in error."

Mr. Fort's association claimed Monday that the report contained a "request" to place a federal candidate for Victoria in the field as soon as possible, and named a committee to interview prospects.

Mr. McPhillips said the "request" was simply an expression of opinion by Mr. Hees that candidates should be nominated well before election day so that they can "get to know the people and build up a campaign organization."

Mr. Hees' telegram said the new group headed by Mr. McPhillips is the only one recognized by party headquarters and the only one with any authority to name a federal Conservative candidate for Victoria.

He said no candidate without backing of the new group will be endorsed by headquarters.

"We considered the possibility of an error," Mr. Fort said last night. "We acted on what was there."

A Package for Quebec

WHILE the contents of the package will not be fully known until implementing federal and Quebec laws are presented to ratify such an arrangement, the Dominion's offer to Quebec to split the difference on income tax exemptions at 10 per cent appears primarily designed to appease the Duplessis government, rather than serve as a basis for a new deal in federal-provincial taxation. Certainly the nine other provinces are not likely to rush into any plan embodying the fixation of their own direct tax rights as a percentage of an unfixed and floating federal levy, in place of the present leasehold agreements which will expire in March. A full dress conference on the subject is promised, and obviously one will be needed.

Quebec precipitated the issue by levying a provincial income tax outside of the lease agreements, which it did not sign, and demanding a 15 per cent exemption on that account in federal income tax bills. The St. Laurent administration countered by fixing the exemption at 5 per cent. Quebec was not mollified. The latest step, a 10 per cent exemption offer by the Dominion, may turn out to be a formula for Quebec only, unless the other provinces should chose to bite on that. There is very little prospect that they will. British Columbia for example, would receive considerably less than under the lease arrangement, to say nothing of the prospect of a "freeze" in the future.

It may be assumed that the other provinces would find themselves in approximately the same position. So the "alternative" in the present suggestion does not on its face constitute much of an inducement. Conversely, of course, if the nine provinces, all save Quebec, come to that conclusion it might be presumed that they would stand more ready to renew the expiring lease arrangement without too much caviling. So the Dominion could be offering a double-play, with one political and one fiscal purpose in its train.

For Quebec the federal proposals are another matter. The Dominion has come up 5 per cent in its exemption brackets, and that is a clear-cut gain for Mr. Duplessis. If Ottawa observers are correct, this concession could cost the federal treasury $12,000,000 annually. So Quebec's revolt seems to be paying off.

Whatever is to be done by the Dominion and the 10 provinces on income tax collections as a result of the present tentative negotiations and the joint conference next month, it would be a gain to everyone in the nation if the British North America Act were sent to the Supreme Court of Canada by stated case for express interpretation of its conflicting terms as to direct taxation. Any "auctioning" of dual collection exemptions, and that is what the proposals imply, promises no enduring settlement.

Keep It Short, Please

TO enable the House to get down as quickly as possible to the most important item of business of the session, it would be a good thing if members of the B.C. Legislature fell into line with Premier Bennett's suggestion that this year's Throne Speech debate be cut short. It is Mr. Bennett's hope that the order of business can be arranged to permit early presentation of the government's new school finance formula. This is what the municipalities everywhere must be informed about before they can begin work on their own budgets.

With school costs virtually uncontrollable at the municipal level, and also representing the largest item of expenditure, all other municipal departments must wait until the financial requirements for education are taken care of. Delay in passage of amendments to school finance legislation therefore could put the local councils to serious inconvenience. Whether it turns out to contain good news or bad, the government's new formula will be the key to municipal budgeting, which makes it urgent business.

Premier Bennett in his plea for speedy dispatch of the address - in - reply acknowledges that it remains the privilege of members to speak at length in that debate if they choose, but has reminded them that they have a similar opportunity during discussion of the budget. By long-standing custom there are these two free-for-all debates in every session, during which members may talk on almost any subject they like, or on a wide variety of subjects. Rarely are these discussions—the first of which culminates merely in a vote of thanks to the lieutenant-governor — completed in less than 10 days each, and sometimes they have run on for weeks. They are a strange mixture of practical observations and suggestions with dull and boring garrulity.

While the two debates are often the despair of those who know that urgent public business needs attention, the opportunity for each private member to speak his piece and his mind is a valuable part of our system of government; but two debates affording the same latitude of expression can be one too many. Mr. Bennett's proposal that members this year confine their broad generalities to the second open discussion is a practical one in view of what awaits the decision of the House.

Backing Their Faith

THE Bureau of Statistics estimates that at December 1 last the population of Canada had reached a total of 15,410,000, a gain over the previous year of 405,000. Should this rate of increase be maintained, by the time the year 2000 AD has arrived Canadians should be numbered to a count of about 34 millions. Actually because of the multiple nature of population growth the figure might be 40 millions or more.

Whether such a population would validate or not the Laurier prophecy that the 20th century belonged to Canada is another matter. Across the line the population is also increasing by leaps and bounds so that by the end of the nineteen hundreds there might be some 300 million people in the United States. The strength and influence of a nation are not entirely to be measured in terms of numbers, however, and in any case there can be no doubt that Canada is destined to play a large part in human affairs as this century goes on.

Most of the Canadian increase in 1954 came from native growth, although the influx of new prospective citizens was a sizable if none too profuse contribution. Around 153,000 immigrants entered the country during the past year, more than a quarter of them from the British Isles. From Germany came some 29,000, from Italy 23,000, and from the Netherlands about 16,500. Surprisingly enough some 10,000 U.S. citizens crossed the line to settle permanently in Canada.

The word immigrant is perhaps apt to be misleading, in the sense it implies an influx of needy people seeking a haven in a new land. Newcomer would be a better term, as the 1954 prospective citizens from overseas make evident. Altogether these newcomers brought with them into Canada in excess of $60,000,000 in cash, proof of their faith in this country and their willingness to back their entry with substantial resources.

Interpreting the News

Economic Outlook Bright

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

TWO of the country's biggest organizations, the United States government and General Motors, have just expressed the view that the next year or two is going to be one of the most prosperous periods ever.

On the basis of revenue anticipated in the president's budget message, personal incomes are expected to increase about 4 per cent and corporate profits about 7 per cent in 1955-56.

President Harlow H. Curtice of General Motors guessed an increase of 4 per cent in goods and services this year.

The budget seemed to be much as expected. There was even some talk that a deficit had been predicted which could be, if business forecasts proved correct, reduced or eliminated.

This, of course, would be good for the Eisenhower administration if it turned out that way right in the middle of a general election campaign.

There was immediate talk in congressional circles that the budget could be whittled still more. In particular, there is a strong movement to keep on reducing foreign aid.

At the same time a fight was promised over reductions in the direct military spending program.

Both of these items are directly involved in international affairs.

For one thing, two more countries are being drawn into the anti-Communist military defense system, Germany and Japan. They are expected to take up new burdens in expenditures for rearmament while the United States acts on the theory that the military situation is less dangerous than before.

The United States and Britain also think that with the shift to atomic weapons they will actually have more powerful forces than before. But this is not easy to sell, especially in Japan where, unlike West Germany, there is an increasingly unstable economic situation.

The British Scene . . . by Giles

"And I say there IS a pedestrian crossing here." —London Daily Express

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU would notice how it was that Londoners, rather alarmed last Sunday when a black pall suddenly dropped on them, besieged newspaper offices seeking an explanation of the phenomenon.

They would be reassured without a doubt.

I remember some years ago when Victoria suffered a tremor a woman telephoning our office to ask if there would be another earthquake that night. She was gravely informed that no, there would be no earthquake — and presumably thus was enabled to go calmly to bed.

The power of the press, you see.

Now of course a London newspaper, no more than The Daily Colonist, cannot predict the course of nature on a rampage. But it can sooth needless fears.

Such faith in the press, evidenced also by many private calls to a newspaper office on a variety of matters, rather offsets the loose assertions of misquotation or misinterpretation hurled on occasion at members of the fourth estate.

Personally I am always amused by the "I was misquoted" brigade if only because no one ever claims to be misquoted when a story presents him in a flattering light. And to me that circumstance is terribly revealing.

Last year when the Glasgow Rangers football team was in Victoria I attended a luncheon held in their behalf before their game here. The Rangers' chairman was quite wroth. Vancouver papers had spoken ill of the play of his team and in consequence his view of the press in general was very dim. After he had made that quite clear I was called on unexpectedly to say a few words.

Since I came from the Rangers' own bailiwick I was able to reply in the chairman's own language, as it were. But why is it that one thinks of the apt rejoinder only after he sits down?

I could have remarked, had my wits been about me, that sometimes the press seems to be like the bridegroom on his wedding day—not regarded as of much account but rather necessary to the occasion.

Yet on the whole I judge that most newspaper subscribers have a quiet confidence in their daily paper, no matter which one it may be.

This is demonstrated by the readiness with which a person will vouch for a statement by saying, "I saw it in the paper." It would be nice to be able to claim that everything that appears in a newspaper is a 21-carat fact beyond shadow of doubt, but obviously that would be an impossibility.

Where people sometimes go astray is in overlooking the source of a newspaper item. The news columns report what certain individuals say or do concerning a given matter but this distinction is often ignored. Not infrequently the newspaper itself is given credit or discredit for the action taken on the sentiments expressed.

I suspect too that herein lies the root of much of the alleged misquotation or misinterpretation.

However.

The news from London does tend to even the balance, which of late has perhaps been set askew a trifle in Victoria. At least it implies that a newspaper office is not such a sinister den after all, but instead a place in which some faith could be held.

Actually, were it not that I'd be beating a one-sided drum, I think I could go so far as to say that most newspapermen are really fairly respectable beings.

The Fourth Reich

New Burdens for West Germans

By ANTHONY TERRY, from Bonn

WHEN the average German family wakes, one morning soon, to the dawn of a "new" West Germany that has regained full rights as a sovereign nation, there will be precious little else than the ringing of church bells and the politicians' speeches to make the day a pleasant one.

Although the diehard Nazis may speculate on Germany's new sovereignty bringing nearer the time when the Reich can again become aggressively nationalistic, the majority of the Bonn republic's citizens are under no such illusions.

They realize that aside from the technical possession of national freedom, they will be no better off for losing imaginary chains of defeat which were actually removed by the Allies years ago. In fact, they may well be a lot worse off in a number of ways, including the new necessity of paying heavily for their own defense.

With Germany due to step from the role of an occupied nation into an already-organized western union, so little is going to change after "der tag" that the Allies will even continue to make security checks to see that neither Nazis nor Communists represent a threat to our occupation troops. As to the troops, they will continue to remain in Germany, just as they are now, except that they will no longer be called the "occupation."

Members of the typical Germany family anticipating the new role their nation must play also realize they are soon going to have to start making up their minds about some pretty awkward questions which they have been able to shelve until now.

One question will be directly tied to the demands on the West Germans as important members of the anti-Communist alliance. This brings up an issue already under debate here — whether the West Germans should have closer relations with the East Germans, or whether they should rebuff the Communist nation despite the nation-wide appeals for unity.

In the years before the fourth Reich was born, the Bonn government had a ready-made answer to this problem: that the Allied occupation made the rules, and enforced such decisions as the one forbidding shipments of strategic materials to the east.

The rearmament clauses in the Paris pacts also serve to make sovereignty a mixed blessing. For the day when the Fourth Reich appears on the international scene will bring nearer the date two years hence when some 500,000 young Germans follow in their fathers' footsteps, and actually start tramping around the 400 barrack squares where Hitler's jackbooted armies set off to conquer the world 16 years ago.

Facing the Germany of tomorrow and the day after, the average German family fears that this assigned role in Western defense will not be easy. For one thing, the young men will have to be taken from the labor force during a period of business and trade booms.

But more serious is the real problem of the future—a sagging birthrate and the loss of a generation to the Second World War. Statistical studies indicate that the West German population of 49,000,000 will decline during the next 50 years. Even today, Germany is becoming a nation of old men. The country has 3,500,000 old-age pensioners supported by 17,000,000 wage earners—nine persons aged 35 to every 20 aged 50.

Many of the others—the men Germany now needs—lie somewhere on the battlefields between El Alamein and the Arctic Circle.

Time after time, 79-year-old Chancellor Adenauer has assured parliament and the West German nation that such catastrophe can never happen again—that "German militarism is dead and will never rise again."

But the average German family is prone to retort, "Not so long as the old man is alive—but what happens afterward?" Former Nazis, the few Communist sympathizers and the opportunists are looking forward to the day when Adenauer's strong guiding hand relaxes control. When that time comes, the typical German is prone to believe "they" are very likely to take over Germany and militarize her again.

Exactly who "they" are varies in the mind of different Germans—from the 8,000,000 Socialists who foresee a disarmed Germany sitting on the fence and trading with both East and West, to the unreconstructed Hitlerites (nicknamed here "the yesterday boys") who look for a Nazi-type revival, with a reunified Germany becoming powerful enough to come to terms with both sides.

It is current problems like these that darken the "great day" for many ordinary Germans. These anxieties have helped to turn into one of the biggest popular successes since Hitler's "Mein Kampf," a book and film portraying in coarsest detail the humiliations of a German soldier before and during the Second World War.

But cynics recall that just over 30 years ago a book on the same subject, "All Quiet on the Western Front," was just as big a success. And yet within a single generation the Nazis had been swept into power and had re-established the rule of the jackboot.

To many Germans, memories like this serve to fortify the idea that the best to be hoped for is that things will stay the way they are for many years; and that Russia and the West somehow will come to terms linking the West Germans with their 19,000,000 poor-relation brothers eking out a dreary living on the wrong side of the iron curtain.

We're Different

(From The Financial Post)

AMERICANS scared themselves into smoking 4.6 per cent fewer cigarettes in 1954. Canadians, unperturbed, actually smoked about 5 per cent more.

In this matter and others Canadians have demonstrated that they are not simply a branch of the American race living north of the international border. Anyone who cares to dig a bit will find that there are many differences.

Our tastes in movies, literature, clothes, politics, foreign affairs and even in investments and marriages are not quite the same. For our own good we may be a bit too timid, too cautious and too skeptical. But these are national characteristics just the same that distinguish us.

Sometimes our friends to the south have been a little slow in recognizing these small but essential differences. If they are smart, American and other foreign interests doing business here will recognize the fact that this is a different country and one that requires a different approach.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

THE LADY ahead of me in the cashier's line-up in the supermarket was well dressed, smart, bright. She certainly did not look as if she had quit school in Grade 7. Indeed, she had the bearing and appearance of a college graduate.

"Can you," she asked the cashier, "put the pudaytas in a seprut bag, please?"

"Serrnly, ma'am," said the cashier.

And he put the pudaytas in a separate bag.

"Would you pahfer a cart'n," asked the cashier, "insteada a bag fer the resta the stuff?"

"That'd be nice," agreed the lady. "Howja arrange to get sumbuddy to kerry the stuff out-ta ma car?"

"I'll buzz fer a boy, ma'am," said the cashier. "It'll onny be a minnit."

A tall youth came. He never opened his mouth. So my lesson in Canadian dialect came to an end.

There definitely is growing a Canadian dialect. It is as distinct from English and American dialects as they are from each other. The Canadian dialect consists first of all of elision. Vowels are dropped wherever possible. Nobody says Ham-il-ton any more. The pronounce it Ham'l't'n. It comes close to being one syllable, instead of three. Not a bark or snort, but a sound that might be made if the mouth were full of warm pancake with maple syrup.

The letter T is changed to D whenever possible, as in pudayta, bedder for better, vederan, moder-car, hoddog, waider for waiter and dozens of others you can hear all around you in the next half hour, if you listen.

We elide, we soften, we choose the laziest sound offered. We drop our Gs. I ought to know. A lady called me on the phone a few minutes ago.

"I heard you," she said, "on the radio last night. I am a school teacher. I try to teach my children how to enunciate English. You referred to the Arctic as the Artick, and you dropped more than 60 per cent of your Gs."

Two men were working on a very tall building. Suddenly the man at the top of the ladder called to his mate at the bottom:

"I say, Jim, come up here a minute and listen."

His mate slowly climbed the ladder and at last, quite out of breath, reached the top.

"I can't hear anything," he said after listening intently for a while.

"No," said the other. "Ain't it quiet?"

With the Classics

A traveler through a dusty road strewed acorns on the lea.
And one took root and sprouted up and grew into a tree.
Love sought its shade, at evening time, to breathe its early vows;
And age was pleased in heat of noon to bask beneath its bough;
The dormouse loved its dangling twigs, the birds sweet music bore;
It stood a glory in its place, a blessing evermore.

Three-Car Crash Ends in $35 Fine

A driver involved in a three-car collision that caused more than $1,700 damage was fined $35 by Magistrate Henry C. Hall in police court yesterday for careless driving.

Joseph T. Frenette, 1048 Queens, pleaded guilty to the offense. Police said that Frenette admitted failing to stop at the sign at View and Quadra at about 11 a.m. January 9. His car struck two other vehicles.

Two persons were injured in the accident.

Frenette said he failed to see the stop sign because of bright sunshine.

Magistrate Hall said he would recommend suspension of Frenette's license.

Laurence R. Slack, 1312 Gladstone, was fined $25 after he admitted driving without insurance contrary to his license restriction.

A $15 penalty was levied on Barry Rushworth, 1821 Cook, after he admitted being in illegal possession of liquor while a minor. He admitted ownership of a 13-ounce bottle of whisky found in a car.

Passing in restricted zones brought $10 fines to Ronald V. Pearce, 2721 Rock Bay, and Orville K. Phillips, RR 2, Royal Oak.

Ousted Director Placed

Herbert E. Blanchard, former director of Boys' Industrial School at Coquitlam, has been appointed to his old job with the provincial government as deputy superintendent of child welfare.

Mr. Blanchard left the post with the social welfare branch in Victoria to take the BISCO appointment some years ago.

He was one of seven officials of the reform school who were dismissed after a committee under Roland M. Schou disclosed hostility among staff members and lack of a sound training program.

Welfare Minister Eric Martin said at the time dismissal was no reflection on their integrity. It was recommended by the Schou report.

Approval by Teachers Expected For Compromise Wage Boost

A compromise agreement which will give wage increases to some of the 542 teachers in Greater Victoria is expected to be approved by the teachers at a meeting in Oak Bay Junior High School Thursday.

Reports last night indicated that a majority of teachers favors the agreement, approved by the [illegible] Board Monday.

The agreement, reached by the board's finance committee and the salary committee of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, will add $57,150 to the payroll of $2,200,000.

Original request of the teachers for rearrangement of the salary schedule would have added $112,000 to the payroll.

The 2¼ per cent average increase will go to approximately half of the teachers, and is confined to elementary and second dary grade teachers.

The compromise agreement raises pay schedules to a point midway between wages paid by the school board last year and the minimum scale advocated by the B.C. Teachers' Federation, and the school board feels the new schedule will give teachers incentive to increase their qualifications.

"No trouble with IRREGULARITY"

Writes Mr. J. C. Hillis, of Halifax, N.S.

"It's a pleasure to be rid of harsh laxatives. I've had no trouble with irregularity for 18 months, since taking your gentle but effective laxation cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran."

The above testimonial is typical of thousands received each year for All-Bran, the original, natural laxative cereal pioneered nearly 40 years ago by W. K. Kellogg. This delicious dish promotes comfortable elimination without harsh purging.

Relief from Constipation

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage. All-Bran is made from the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel and supplies natural food bulk. Just eat daily a one-ounce serving for breakfast and drink plenty of water. It will improve your "Intestinal Tone" so necessary to comfortable regularity.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

All-Bran is a wholesome, good-tasting cereal that has helped millions. We'll prove to you that Kellogg's All-Bran will give gentle, effective relief from constipation within 10 days or return twice what you paid. But be sure you get Kellogg's, the one and only All-Bran. Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1 ♣	1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	3 ♡	4 ♠	All pass

North's one-club bid on a three-card suit is a familiar bidding manoeuvre to the modern player. North's hand is not strong enough for one no-trump, and if he opens with one spade he will find it embarrassing to rebid over a two-heart bid, for example.

West opened the queen of hearts, and continued the suit. After winning a second heart, East continued with a third round which South trumped high. The spades were drawn in three leads, and declarer next cashed three rounds of diamonds, ending in his hand. Meanwhile, East got rid of his remaining hearts. Now South led the three of clubs—a false-card that may have helped to make West a bit careless. At any rate West played the seven in order to force North's queen—only to find that the queen wasn't forced. South saw no reason to fling away the queen in the face of East's strong bidding. There was always the chance that East might find it necessary to win the trick; if not, there would still be time to finesse the queen on the next lead.

Bridge players seldom wish for low cards, but this was one time East yearned for something smaller than a seven-spot. He didn't have it, however. When he had to overtake and lead a club into North's ace-queen, South made his contract.

West should have defeated the contract. All that was needed was to heed the good moral precept, "Give your best." This was the spot for him to play the nine. East could have got under that card with his eight-spot, and with the nine holding the trick a club continuation from West would have given the defenders two club tricks and stopped the game.

At the 19th

IAN GLENDAY

(During the absence of Harry Young, who is taking an extended vacation in his native Scotland, At The 19th will be written by Ian Glenday, staff member of the Colonist sports department.)

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE: Mounting interest in the city button matches has helped to keep golf in the news locally during these lean months, but over at the Victoria Golf Club last week, the topic of discussion turned to Victoria's first major tournament of 1955—the Empress tourney.

Although play in this popular week-long tourney won't get under way until April 16, the Empress committee has decided on a number of changes, the big one being that both the men and the women will play on the Victoria Golf Club links this year.

That means that the entry list will have to be reduced and both the first and 11th tees will be going full swing for the best part of a day in order to get play completed before darkness sets in. Main reason for the change, it's said, is so that both husband and wife can play together over the same course.

In past years the men played at the Oak Bay links and, for the first three days, the women toured another course. But complaints from the visitors have been received about this set-up, so the committee decided on making it strictly a one-course event, which, to say the least, is a large undertaking.

Victoria Golf Club professional Phil Taylor has worked it out that the tourney will be able to handle 144 men and 64 women providing play gets under way at 8 a.m. and the women start on the 11th tee. This is a considerable cut in entries from last year's 24th annual event, when there were 152 men and 78 women. The record, set two years ago, is 185 men and 160 women.

Although originally a mid-winter tournament, unsettled weather has forced the committee to set back the date the past few years in hopes that the visitors will have good reports to carry back to their home cities.

JUNIOR TEAM MATCH ADDED: While on the subject of tournaments, Victoria's big 1955 golfing event will be held at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club in early August. It will feature the ladies and actually is five tournaments in one. In addition to the Canadian Open and Close championships there will be the inter-provincial team match, the junior ladies' championship and, now an inter-provincial junior team match.

The latter event was announced yesterday by the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association and is intended to be an annual affair. Two juniors from each province will compete in the team match, set for August 4 and 5. The junior individual championships will be decided August 5 and 6. The ladies' Close will be held August 4, 5 and 6 in conjunction with the senior inter-provincial matches while the Canadian Open will be played between August 8 and 13.

Marlene Stewart, defending the Close title and former Open champion, will be on hand to compete in both events and has accepted an invitation extended by Walter Eilers to stay at his Langford Lake home during the two weeks of the tournaments. Victoria's Dorothy Herbertson, runner-up to Miss Stewart, is expected to be a contender again.

Colwood recently dropped its ladies' par rating from 78 to 76 and a similar paring has taken place at Uplands and Gorge Vale. They don't want our courses to look too easy when the star performers from the U.S. and other parts of Canada visit these parts.

PUTTIN' AROUND: From Vancouver comes the report that golf carts have been banned from the Point Grey Golf Club until such time as the committee feels that the two-wheel "caddies" can operate without digging into the fairways. Which brings to mind that several golf officials here would like to see a similar rule adopted during the wet months . . . Newest type of golfmobile was introduced by a Peoria, Ill., car dealer who rebuilt a Henry J into a de luxe golf car at a cost of $1,000. The roadster is equipped with leopard skin-covered seats for four, a portable cooler for refreshments and a huge beach umbrella which is anchored on the floorboard . . . Bob Fleming took the money on the first nine at Gorge Vale Sunday while playing with Stan McFarlin, Joe Pryke, Bill Betteridge and Leo Derman. Fleming got a four-under-par 32—and that included three putts on the ninth . . . Amateur Pat Lesser, hard-hitting young Seattle blonde who won the Pacific Northwest championship at Colwood last year, got a fourth-place tie in the Sea Island, Georgia, Open tournament with a 77-81—158, seven strokes behind Mrs. Jackie Pung, the winner.

New Trophy Presented to Victoria Oarsmen

Norm Edmonds, coach of the James Bay Athletic Association Rowing Club, is shown receiving the new Worley Perpetual Challenge Cup from Ron Worley, executive assistant to Premier Bennett. Trophy is for annual competition for eight-oared crews in North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen and was won at Elk Lake last Labor Day by JBAA crew, winner over Vancouver Rowing Club. Members of the winning crew were Darryl Jenkins, coxswain; Clive Watson, stroke; Jim Olver, No. 7; Don Stewart, No. 6; Warren Harrison, No. 5; Tegid Jones, No. 4; Jack Donald, No. 3; Ken Toby, No. 2, and Frank Lohner, No. 1. Edmonton 7, New Westminster 4 at Vancouver 8.

Next game: Tonight — Victoria at Saskatoon.

Victoria Cougars, trailing by two goals with less than a period and a half left, last night started their third invasion of the Prairies by playing to a 2-2 deadlock with the Flyers before an Edmonton crowd of about 3,500 fans.

But, while the split in points was acceptable, the Cougars lost another point in their battle to protect their fourth-place Western Hockey League standing from the improved Vancouver Canucks. The Mainlanders walloped New Westminster Royals, 8-4, at Vancouver to move within eight points with four games in hand.

SCORE WHILE SHORT

Flyers were playing short-handed when they opened the scoring late in the first period, rookie centre Norm Ullman backhanding high past Marcel Pelletier as he whipped across the goalmouth. Early in the second period, Ed Stankiewicz rifled one in from a scramble and the Flyers appeared to be on their way to a win.

But the scrappy Cougars weren't to be denied. Andy Hebenton got his 31st goal just past the midway mark of the period with a high backhander, then figured on a play with Ed Dorohoy which saw Doug Macauley tie it up early in the third period with a backhand shot which beat Glen Hall from close in.

The point boosted Flyers' edge over the second place Calgary Stampeders and Royals to five points and with another helpful player shift yesterday, the Edmonton entry appears to be set for the top spot.

FLYERS GET DAVIS

In the latest changes in the Detroit farm system, right-winger Lorne Davis was sent to Edmonton and defenseman Ed Zeniuk was returned after a few days in the NHL. To make room for the pair, the Flyers sent defenseman Al Arbour and winger Joe Malo to Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League.

Earlier, the Flyers had received Keith Allen, a minor league defense star, for Zeniuk and the shifts resulted in them giving up Arbour and Malo for strengthening.

At Vancouver, rookie Hugh Barlow led the Canucks to their smashing triumph with three goals and two assists. Phil Maloney, another recent acquisition, had two goals and picked up an assist while defenseman Harry Dick helped make the plays for four goals.

LONG LEAD

Canucks broke a 1-1 tie with two goals late in the first period, then boosted their margin to 7-1 by 6.54 of the third period before the Royals rallied for three successive goals.

Tonight's only game has the Cougars continuing their crucial road trip at Saskatoon. It's Calgary on Friday and Edmonton again on Saturday while Royals and Canucks play their second and third games of the week on the same nights.

Canadian, U.S. Golfers Even As Weather Halts Hopkins Play

LA JOLLA, Calif. (CP)—The cream of Canadian and United States golf professionals battled on even terms against each other Tuesday but lost to wind and rain that cut short the first-day play of their fourth annual Hopkins Cup matches.

The team point score was tied 3-3 at the end of nine holes, when the storm caused postponement of the final nine today.

Henry Martell, veteran from Edmonton and the winner of the Canadian PGA championship in 1953, racked up the biggest margin among the three Canadian point-getters by leading Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., 3-up at the end of nine. Martell, playing in the event for the second time and last year's team captain, shot a neat 38.

LEONARD BEST

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, one of Canada's finest golfers and a veteran of the winter pro circuit, had the best round among the Canadians with a 37 as he led Jackie Burke, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., 1-up.

The other Canadian leader was Jules Huot of Montreal, oldest member of the team, who held a 3-up margin over Jerry Barber, Los Angeles.

Ed Furgol, United States Open champion, Chick Harbert and Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the golfing dentist, were the United States leaders.

The team scoring is based on a point for winning each nine holes and a third for the final 18.

TOP EFFORT

Middlecoff's par 36 against Bill Kerr of Montreal, new president of the Canadian PGA, who had a 40, was the best effort of the day. Middlecoff, one of the hottest players on the winter circuit and winner of two big tournaments in recent weeks, led Kerr 2-up.

The rain, driven by a 40-mile gale began at noon, just as Ed Furgol and Al Balding of Toronto, youngest member of the team, teed off to open the international competition which the United States has won in three previous engagements—all in Canada.

Play in the final nine of the singles matches is scheduled to start at 8 a.m. PST today. The three doubles matches are set for 11.30 a.m.

TAKES SIX

Furgol took a six on the par-four eighth hole, when he missed his drive and wound up in a deep barranca. But he shot par four on the ninth, to make him 1-up in the match play and give the United States its first point. Both he and the 25-year-old Balding, one of the most promising of the new generation of Canadian pros, finished in 41 strokes.

Harbert, captain of the United States team, shot 39, three over par, to gain a two-up edge over Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, who last year was the first Canadian to win the Canadian Open since 1914. Harbert bagged three birdies, on the first, fifth and ninth holes.

The husky Fletcher shot a 41. He was a member of the previous Hopkins teams and won the Canadian PGA in 1952.

SOLE BIRDIE

Leonard, the Canadian captain, had the only birdie of the match against Burke, on the sixth hole. Burke fired a 38.

A member of the three previous Hopkins teams, Leonard set a competitive course record at Montreal Beaconsfield when he shot an eight-under-par 64 (old record was 65) in defeating Julius Boros, then the U.S. open king.

Martell finished four strokes ahead of Marty Furgol, who took a 42 for the nine. The Edmonton pro was an outstanding amateur before he entered the play-for-pay circuit. He won the Canadian amateur in 1946.

Today in the doubles, Middlecoff and Lloyd Mangrum, who was the idle seventh man on the U.S. team yesterday, will go against Balding and George Brydson of Toronto, former NHL star and the Canadian team's seventh player.

Burke and Ed Furgol will meet Fletcher and Leonard.

Barber and Marty Furgol will meet Martell and Kerr.

Speaking Briefly

Canadian football lost another of its star U.S. imports yesterday when it was announced that Martin Ruby, great lineman with Saskatchewan Roughriders, had agreed to take the job as line coach with the University of Arkansas.

Captain Red Tilson, leading scorer for Spokane Flyers of the Western International Hockey League, quit the club yesterday in protest over a fine handed out by manager Roy McBride for allegedly breaking training.

Toronto city council is being asked to approve a $1,750,000 enlargement of Maple Leaf Stadium, which would increase its seating capacity to 42,260. The Civic Sports Committee feels that this would give Toronto a chance for a major league baseball franchise and also assure retention of the Grey Cup final.

Purse distribution during Western Canada's 1955 racing season will reach a record total of $723,700, R. James Speers Corp. said yesterday. The major boost is planned at Calgary's three meets.

EDMONTON (BUP) — Local sportscaster Al Shaver said yesterday anyone with enough money to pay off the deficit and provide sound working capital would have an excellent chance of buying the Calgary Stampeders Football Club.

Shaver predicted that if, as rumored, former Montreal Alouettes general manager Lew Hayman is trying to buy the WIFU club, the Stampeder executive will approve the sale.

He said the deal might be a "cover-up" operation, with the sale not announced until after Hayman had taken over as coach next season and built the club up to a contending position. The Stampeders are still without a coach for 1955.

Return Bout for Referees, Double Main Event Carded

A double main event and a return match between two referees is the wrestling fare arranged for Victoria fans at the Victoria Ballroom tomorrow night.

Buddy Curtis of Santa Monica, California, will wrestle Mr. X in one main event with the stipulation that the unknown grappler must unmask if beaten.

In the other main event, Jerry Woods of Mesa, Arizona, is pitted against Herman "Red" Kail, who is billed from Essen, Germany. The first event is a best two of three falls with a one-hour time limit, while the Woods-Kail match has a 45-minute time limit, best two of three falls.

Two Victoria referees, Dave Pye and Mike Belton, will open the action at 8.30 in a one-fall bout with a 30-minute time limit.

Ranger Boss 'Misquoted'

NEW YORK (CP) — The president of Madison Square Garden said Tuesday that New York Rangers' manager Frank Boucher had been misquoted when he was reported in Lethbridge recently to have said that the American teams were considering withdrawing from the National Hockey League.

Second Robinson Bout on TV Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the erstwhile song-and-dance man, tries to step up the tempo of his ring comeback tonight against crowding Ralph (Tiger) Jones.

The 10-rounder at Chicago Stadium is Robinson's second start in two weeks, but it will be his first countrywide television bout (7 p.m. PST, channel 11) in almost three years. Jones will weigh about 158 and Robinson around 157.

Sugar Ray is a 3-to-1 favorite to fashion victory No. 2 since forsaking a 30-month stage career in which the glitter, or gold, or both, failed to satisfy the abdicated world middleweight champion and former welter king.

Robinson, 34, launched his comeback January 5 with a sixth-round knockout over plodding Joe Rindone at Detroit.

Robinson, who figures to collect $12,000 tonight—including a $4,000 TV and radio fee—can hit the big money class again if he handles Jones as expected. Robinson has a phenominal record of only three defeats and two draws in 142 bouts. Jones has a 32-12-3 record.

Fans Turning Backs On Big-Time Soccer

LONDON (UP)—Despite the spate of promises that the quality and technical ability of English League soccer teams would improve this season, the verdict at the season's halfway mark was "thumbs down" from the fans.

The 1954-55 season started off with a series of bright and crowd-pleasing games, but the clubs have failed to maintain this tempo, and league officials ruefully admit that if the present trend continues soccer will lose at least another 1,000,000 spectators when the final attendance tally is made at the end of the season.

In order to keep English professional soccer on a paying basis, Arthur Oakly, chairman of Wolverhampton Wanderers, stressed that league clubs must win back the 4,000,000 soccer fans who have been lost to the game in recent years. But the figures at the halfway stage of league competition show that the decline is anything but arrested.

Official attendance figures show a drop of an average of 500 fans at each game this season, and if this is not halted the total fall for the season's 2,028 matches will reach 1,014,000.

This slump is not only affecting the less successful clubs, but those in the higher brackets of the standings. Charlton, for instance, points out that its home attendances are 3,000 short of the required 36,000 to keep the club out of the red. If this is not forthcoming, Charlton officials hint that they must transfer some of their stars for lucrative fees to keep the club solvent.

TV BLAMED

Rainy weather and the game's chief entertainment competitor—television—are being blamed for the slump, and to some extent television is probably the best answer to the fans' grumbles regarding the type of play they are expected to pay to watch on Saturday afternoons.

The many thrilling matches in the World Cup tourney in Switzerland were televised, and it did not take the fans long to see the differences in the quality of the play compared with Saturday's league matches.

Soccer officials had hoped that the Football Association Challenge Cup competition, which began for the big clubs January 8, would see an upward surge in attendance. But despite the fact that most matches experienced virtually pleasant weather for this time of the year, the 32 games drew only 877,375 fans, as compared with 956,000 at the start of last season's competition. These figures definitely show that English soccer is losing its crowd appeal.

CUP SLUMP

The excitement of the cup in past seasons has always attracted the crowds, but in six years the attendances have slumped from 1,036,000 to 877,375—figures which speak for themselves.

The football league is scheduled to discuss the situation, and the only concrete move expected from it is to announce that soccer will be banned from television while the game is in progress—a move already being interpreted as "defeatist" by many sports writers and columnists.

Officials Err; No Record In High Jump

CHICAGO (AP)—The director of The Daily News relays said Tuesday officials had erred in claiming a world indoor high jump record of six feet 10 inches for Herman Wyatt at the Boston Knights of Columbus meet Saturday night.

T. Nelson Metcalf, who supervises the annual Daily News relays, said a leap of six feet 10¾ inches by Ken Wiesner, former Marquette athlete, in the 1953 relays was approved as an American indoor record.

Metcalf said it was approved at the National Amateur Athletic Union convention November 27 to 29, 1953, in Washington. Last week end Dan Ferris, national AAU secretary-treasurer, said Wiesner's mark had never been submitted for approval.

In New York Ferris admitted the error after checking the records.

Cougars Get Point By Tying Flyers But Canucks Gain

Edmonton 7, New Westminster 4 at Vancouver 8.

Next game: Tonight — Victoria at Saskatoon.

Victoria Cougars, trailing by two goals with less than a period and a half left, last night started their third invasion of the Prairies by playing to a 2-2 deadlock with the Flyers before an Edmonton crowd of about 3,500 fans.

But, while the split in points was acceptable, the Cougars lost another point in their battle to protect their fourth-place Western Hockey League standing from the improved Vancouver Canucks. The Mainlanders walloped New Westminster Royals, 8-4, at Vancouver to move within eight points with four games in hand.

SCORE WHILE SHORT

Flyers were playing short-handed when they opened the scoring late in the first period, rookie centre Norm Ullman backhanding high past Marcel Pelletier as he whipped across the goalmouth. Early in the second period, Ed Stankiewicz rifled one in from a scramble and the Flyers appeared to be on their way to a win.

But the scrappy Cougars weren't to be denied. Andy Hebenton got his 31st goal just past the midway mark of the period with a high backhander, then figured on a play with Ed Dorohoy which saw Doug Macauley tie it up early in the third period with a backhand shot which beat Glen Hall from close in.

The point boosted Flyers' edge over the second place Calgary Stampeders and Royals to five points and with another helpful player shift yesterday, the Edmonton entry appears to be set for the top spot.

FLYERS GET DAVIS

In the latest changes in the Detroit farm system, right-winger Lorne Davis was sent to Edmonton and defenseman Ed Zeniuk was returned after a few days in the NHL. To make room for the pair, the Flyers sent defenseman Al Arbour and winger Joe Malo to Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League.

Earlier, the Flyers had received Keith Allen, a minor league defense star, for Zeniuk and the shifts resulted in them giving up Arbour and Malo for strengthening.

At Vancouver, rookie Hugh Barlow led the Canucks to their smashing triumph with three goals and two assists. Phil Maloney, another recent acquisition, had two goals and picked up an assist while defenseman Harry Dick helped make the plays for four goals.

LONG LEAD

Canucks broke a 1-1 tie with two goals late in the first period, then boosted their margin to 7-1 by 6.54 of the third period before the Royals rallied for three successive goals.

Tonight's only game has the Cougars continuing their crucial road trip at Saskatoon. It's Calgary on Friday and Edmonton again on Saturday while Royals and Canucks play their second and third games of the week on the same nights.

Fielder Closing Gap In WHL Scoring Race

Bronco Horvath, Edmonton centre who had been threatening to make a runaway of the individual scoring race in the Western Hockey League, may yet get a battle for the honors.

Out of last night's game because of a leg injury suffered at Calgary last Saturday, Horvath may have to get back in action soon if he is to stay on top. He is still eight points ahead of his nearest pursuer but New Westminster's Guyle Fielder is moving up fast along with several other players.

WITHIN RANGE

Fielder picked up six points last week against two for Horvath and the New Westminster centre added an assist last night to boost his point total to an even 60 and put him in position where a late drive may allow him to keep the championship he won last season.

Max McNab, playing coach of the Royals, and Gerry Couture, veteran Calgary winger, are tied for third place with 57 points, one more than Ed Dorohoy of Victoria Cougars.

Horvath leads in goals scored with 34, with Victoria's Andy Hebenton again closing in and now at 31. Fielder leads in assists with 47.

NO COMPETITION

Vancouver's Harry Dick is out in front by himself in the race for penalty honors. Dick has spent 127 minutes in the penalty box while last season's penalty champion, Victoria's Pete Durham is second with 93 minutes.

Edmonton's Glen Hall leads the goalkeepers with an average of 2.90 goals allowed per game. Marcel Pelletier of the Victoria Cougars, who leads the WHL in shutouts with five, is close up at 3.04.

Although getting real opposition from the winless Copley Brothers, Vampires took over sole possession of the city men's senior "B" basketball league lead last night by scoring a 51-44 triumph over the league trailers at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Copleys, who have lost eight in a row, stayed in the game right to the finish as Dick Sleep sparked their fine effort with 18 points. It was 23-23 at half-time and the Saanich team took a lead in the early minutes of the second half.

Vampires, led by playing coach Lou McCorkall, who scored 12 of his 14 points in the last half, came back strong near the finish to pull away in the late minutes.

CHANCE TOMORROW

Result gave Vampires 14 points, two more than Individuals, who get a chance to regain a tie for the lead tomorrow night when they play third-place Fletchers at the S. J. Willis gym.

In preliminary games last night, St. Louis College came back with 18 points in the second half to down Eagles, 22-18, in a juvenile boys' tussle while the St. Louis College midgets lost to Brookmeades, 29-22.

English XI Rolls Up 328

MOUNT GAMBIER, Australia (Reuters)—The English touring cricket team rattled up 328 in 255 minutes here Tuesday to open a two-day game against a South Australia country team. The Australians replied with 40 for one wicket before the close of play.

Peter May, England's vice-captain, reached 1,000 runs on the current tour when 40 of his 62 runs had been scored.

Young Toronto Star Sparks Nottingham

LONDON (CP) — A young centre forward fresh from Toronto soccer has helped spark Notts County in one of the hottest runs this season in English League football.

[illegible] left Nottingham for Canada two years ago vowing that he was finished with the British game, has scored eight goals in his five matches so far with the second division team. The county has taken 15 of 16 possible points in its last eight games, surging from 13th place in the 22-team league to third.

PROMOTION LIKELY

The experts say that Notts County — and Jackson — are bound for promotion to the first division.

"It took me a couple of weeks to get back into shape," said Jackson in a telephone interview from Nottingham. The 23-year-old had played with the Toronto German Olympia team until the season ended in October.

Notts County officials promptly tagged him when he returned early in December to spend Christmas with his folks. He went into the reserve team for tuning up, scored several goals and then latched securely to the leadership of the county's league team.

Saturday, he contributed two goals in the 5-4 defeat of Blackburn Rovers, the division leaders. He had started 1955 with a bang, firing four goals January 1 when Notts County beat West Ham 5-1.

The victory run is a club record. Notts is a 100-to-1 shot to win the Football Association Cup. The sudden-death competition reaches the fifth round January 29. Notts plays first division Sheffield Wednesday, and must win if it wants to keep alive its chances of becoming the first second-division team to win the event since West Bromwich Albion in 1931.

Successful as his comeback has been, Jackson is certain he will return to Canada. He was working with a Toronto engineering firm.

His opinion about Toronto soccer is that "individually, players are pretty good, but the teams still have a way to go before they could compete with the English League." He feels Toronto is the centre of Canadian soccer, and the standard of play has been boosted by the influx of European emigrants.

"A combination Toronto team could hold plenty of top English squads," Jackson said.

'Don't Pick Popein,' Ranger Chiefs Plead

NEW YORK (UP)—"It would cost him a thousand bucks, but what's that compared with a successful career?"

Coach Muzz Patrick of the New York Rangers was arguing that it would be to Larry Popein's advantage if he failed to win the National Hockey League's rookie of the year award.

"Do us a favor," Patrick pleaded with newsmen and radio broadcasters who make the annual selection, "and don't vote for Popein!"

To which general manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers added: "Amen."

Popein, a 24-year-old centre with a swift, zig-zag style which suggests the great Max Bentley in his prime, is the Rangers' leading candidate for the award, but Patrick and Boucher fear the $1,000 honor is jinxed.

LARRY POPEIN

ONLY BRIEF

"We'll be just as happy if a Ranger never wins that award again," Patrick said. "We've won it the last two years and had nothing but grief."

Neither of the last two winners was ever able to make the Rangers in his sophomore campaign. Lorne Worsley won the award in the 1952-53 season only to lose his job to Johnny Bower the following season. Camille Henry, who copped the honor in 1953-54, has long since departed to the Quebec Aces in the Quebec Hockey League.

Popein, who played for Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, is one of the fastest men in the NHL when it comes to skating, but one of its slowest when it comes to sounding off about himself.

"He's a real monosyllable guy," says roommate Andy Bathgate. "Sometimes I think he's mad at me for weeks at a time. But he doesn't mean anything. He's concentrating so much, he's got no time for talking about himself."

Bathgate pointed out, however, that Popein "really proved himself a big leaguer a couple of weeks ago."

There's an old adage in the NHL that a player isn't a big leaguer until he loses his teeth. Until recently, Popein had the finest set in the circuit. But that was before Ted Kennedy of the Toronto Maple Leafs caressed Popein with the blade of his stick and sent three teeth skittering across the ice.

"What a shame," Bathgate commented in the dressing room. "And he had the most beautiful set of teeth I ever saw on a hockey player."

"I'm a newcomer in these parts," said Popein. "It was an accident."

Suspensions Threatened

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—The president of the Western International Hockey League has warned that players who "abuse" referees will be suspended from the league.

"From here on out we will not tolerate any more abuse of referees or league officials," said Dr. Joe Vingo.

"We feel we must back them to the hilt and we also feel the public who are supporting hockey are entitled to witness the best play possible," he said.

Dr. Vingo's ruling followed a game in Nelson last Wednesday night when a number of Spokane Flyers players were alleged to have abused the referees.

Half of Mid-Season All-Stars Drawn from Canadiens' Ranks

MONTREAL (BUP) — Montreal Canadiens, who ruled the National Hockey League during the first half of the season, today captured half of the six positions on the mid-season all-star team.

Two members of the Toronto Maple Leafs were also named to the dream squad by hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities, with the Detroit Red Wings supplying the sixth man.

The defensive unit on the mid-season team were all repeaters from last year's all-star aggregation while the offensive line was composed of newcomers.

Goalie Harry Lumley of Toronto, and defensemen Doug Harvey of Montreal and Red Kelly of Detroit held the positions they won last year.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal was selected as all-star centre, teammate Bernie Geoffrion just edged Maurice Richard for right-wing honors and Sid Smith of Toronto captured the all-star left-wing berth by a wide margin.

Points were awarded on the basis of five for a first choice, three for second and one for third. Each NHL city had three votes.

Harvey came the closest to being a unanimous first place choice, capturing 89 of a possible 90 points. Lumley polled 80 and Kelly and Smith 71. Geoffrion was low man with 65. Geoffrion's relatively small total resulted from the close battle with Richard, who was just three points behind and wound up on the second team.

Other second team selections were: goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk of Detroit, defensemen Bob Goldham of Detroit and Hugh Bolton of Toronto, centre Ken Mosdell of Montreal and left-wing Danny Lewicki of the Rangers.

Beliveau and Geoffrion, the youngest members of the team at 23, had never made all-star rating before. Smith had been a second choice twice, in 1950-51 and 1951-52. Goldham, Lewicki and Bolton also were new to all-star recognition. Mosdell was last year's choice at centre ice and Sawchuk and Richard are all-star veterans. For the past 11 years, Richard has made either the first or second team. Sawchuk shares the same distinction for the last four years.

Two conspicuous absentees were Detroit's twin threats, right winger Gordie Howe and left-winger Ted Lindsay, all-star choices for the past five and four years, respectively.

First team: Harry Lumley, Toronto (80); Doug Harvey, Canadiens (89); Red Kelly, Detroit (71); Jean Beliveau, Canadiens (65); Sid Smith, Toronto (71); Bernie Geoffrion, Canadiens (68).

Second team: Terry Sawchuk, Detroit (58); Bob Goldham, Detroit (29); Hugh Bolton, Toronto (21); Ken Mosdell, Canadiens (65); Danny Lewicki, Rangers (39); Maurice Richard, Canadiens (65).

Gordie Howe Pressing NHL Leaders

Scoring champion of the National Hockey League for the past four seasons, Gordie Howe is making a late bid to catch the early leaders. The right-wing star of the champion Detroit Red Wings added five points in his last three games to move into a fourth-place tie in the individual scoring race.

Howe now has 20 goals and 19 assists and trails Boom Boom Geoffrion by 11 points. Jean Beliveau by eight and Maurice Richard by two.

Geoffrion has the most goals, 27, while Bert Olmstead of Montreal Canadiens leads in assists with 32. Richard is the individual penalty leader with 88 minutes and Toronto's Harry Lumley leads goalkeepers with an average of 1.69 allowed per game.

The leaders:

Business Block Will Replace Old Landmark

NANAIMO — Tenders will be called for a new $150,000 business block for Nanaimo, it was announced yesterday by Haig Burns, president of the Jean Burns clothing stores.

Construction will be started as soon as the tenders have been let. The modern two-story building will be erected on Commercial Street adjacent to the present store.

Besides the space to be occupied by the Burns store there will be enough for two other stores, with about 1,600 square feet of floor space each and 6,000 square feet of office space on the second floor.

The erection of the new building will result in the disappearance of another old landmark here. The old building at present on the site was first built by the Odd Fellows, later sold to Mrs. F. A. Busby, and in turn sold to Mrs. Burns, the present owner.

LADYSMITH — Acceptance of a tender from W. E. Jamison by school board of District 67 covering the general construction of a teacherage at Thetis Island has been approved by the education department.

Plans for a new elementary school at Ladysmith — a 10-room unit with activity room, to cost $197,300—are expected to go to the department for approval within the next few days.

Council voted to pay the Kinsmen Club $285.35, the amount of the social services tax paid by the club on the purchase of the new ambulance to serve the city and district.

Reports on 1954

Fire Loss Double, Chief Tells Council

PORT ALBERNI—Fire Chief William Venables was given credit for a good and thorough report when his account of fire department affairs for 1954 was read to city council this week.

He compared the $38,085 fire loss of 1954 with the total of $17,609 in 1953. Some 52 regular practices were held with 15 inhalator drills. The inhalator squad under Capt. D. Carter had answered five emergency calls during the year.

Chimney fires predominated, but 95 per cent of them were of no consequence. As long as sawdust is used, chimney fires will continue to plague the department, the fire chief said.

He referred to the death of Deputy Chief John Redford at the [illegible] June as a serious loss to the department.

"Although his death was attributed to a heart attack, there is no doubt in the minds of all of us that work and excitement of the fire contributed to it," Chief Venables stated.

Morale of the department is good and it is well equipped, the chief reported. However, he felt better smoke masks and improved fog nozzles were needed.

Chief Venables extended thanks for co-operation of telephone operators, police and all members of the department.

Falling to yield the right-of-way to pedestrians in a cross-walk cost Joseph F. Chiasson of Work Point Barracks a $10 fine.

Tallest peak on the island of Formosa is 14,720-foot Mount Morrison.

Streets committee will investigate.

Jury Cites Boy For Negligence In Fatal Crash

A coroner's jury deliberated one hour yesterday then cited a 16-year-old boy for "culpable neglect" in the traffic death of John T. Gawthrop, 1115 Leonard.

Rudolph Zembrodt, 1202 Fort, a young German immigrant, was found to have been negligent as a driver in a two-car crash last Wednesday at Hillside and Blackwood.

Mr. Gawthrop, the driver of the other car, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday as a result of multiple injuries received in the collision.

His son, Const. Arnold Gawthrop of the RCMP, was one of two passengers injured in the dead man's car.

Young Zembrodt escaped with face cuts.

CUSTOMER'S CAR

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart was told that the boy was an employee of Wilson Motors Ltd. and was driving a customer's new 1955 car back to the garage for a check-up when the accident occurred.

The boy was driving east on Hillside. Mr. Gawthrop was driving north on Blackwood on the way to Wilkinson Road mental hospital where he was business manager, the court was told.

Merlyn Brown, 1263 Oakmount, told the jury he was a passenger in a car driving west on Hillside when he saw the collision.

Mr. Brown said he did not see the cars until the point of impact.

He said Mr. Gawthrop's car was swung around and pushed "about 20 to 30 feet" up Hillside by the impact.

ENDED ON LAWN

The witness added that it stopped then rolled back down the hill, across the street and came to rest on a front lawn.

The car driven by young Zembrodt traveled "about five feet" after the crash, said Mr. Brown. "I wouldn't say the young fellow was exceeding the speed limit," he added.

There were some cars parked on the south side of Hillside west of Blackwood, said the witness.

Constable Gawthrop said his father stopped for "about 15 seconds" at the sign on Blackwood at Hillside before proceeding into the intersection.

NO TIME TO WARN

He stated he saw the other car when it was about 30 feet away to his left and did not have time to give a warning. The officer said his father's car was traveling about 5 mph.

Constable Gawthrop told the jury he was not sure if his father's view down Hillside was obstructed by parked cars.

Three young witnesses said they thought the new car was being driven at a faster than normal speed on Hillside.

Kieran O'Neil, 2620 Wark, estimated the speed as 50 mph when it passed him about two-and-a-half blocks from the crash intersection.

He said he saw the brake lights go on before the crash.

Const. Roy Foster said the streets were wet at the time of the crash but it was not raining. The new car traveled about five feet after the impact, he added.

UNDER EVIDENCE ACT

Young Zembrodt was advised by his lawyer to give testimony under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

He told the jury he had been driving for six months in Germany a year in Canada and held a current license.

The boy said he stopped on Hillside for a red light on Quadra on his way back to the garage. He should have turned right at Quadra but decided to carry on to Cook when he found himself in the wrong lane.

The young driver said he was traveling at 30 mph when he saw Mr Gawthrop's car emerge from Blackwood when he was about 30 to 40 feet away.

He told the jury he put his foot on the brake but did not have time to exert pressure. The boy added that he could not take evasive action.

The jury retired for one hour before returning its verdict of culpable neglect.

Randall Plans Formal Plea For Rezoning

Formal application to have Sandown Park in North Saanich rezoned to allow horse racing will be made within a few days, W. A. Randall, said last night.

Mr Randall managing director of the Colwood Park Association said he was amazed and disappointed at the decision of the zoning board of appeal yesterday that the property was not now zoned for horse racing and that an application for rezoning will have to be made.

His group previously had been refused a building permit to construct a 1,400-seat grand stand.

At Monday night's meeting Mr Randall disclosed for the first time that provision for a Class A fair is included in plans of his association.

OFFERED LAND

He told the Colonist he had met officials of the BC Agricultural Association on October 25 and had offered them 10 acres of land on which to build an exhibition.

"We have not yet had a reply," he said.

L. R. Dalbyshire, president of the agricultural association had previously said an exhibition in connection with a projected track at Beaver Lake. Elk Lake is favored because of its proximity to Victoria.

TO SAANICH GROUP

Last night Mr. Randall said that if the BC Agricultural Association turns down the contract he will make the same offer to the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society.

That group operates the oldest fair west of the Great Lakes, held at Saanichton every Labor Day week end. It might welcome an offer of enlarged facilities with prospects of higher government grants. It is currently striving for Class "B" recognition.

Mr. Randall described the zoning boards decision as "an initial setback."

SOON "CALM DOWN"

He added "I thought we would be facing a need. I am amazed at the attitude of Victoria people. They say they want racing and fairs but when you offer it to them they calm down."

He pointed out that his Sidney site was not adjacent to any residences.

Five Vancouver Island contractors have been asked to bid on the projected grandstand. Tenders are due by noon Friday.

"I suppose we will have to hold up awarding of contracts until after a public hearing before the zoning board," he said.

Refit Contract Due March 1

The contract for a $400,000 refit of the stand-by weather ship St. Stephen, idle at Victoria for five years, will be awarded from Ottawa about March 1, The Daily Colonist learned yesterday. The job will be done in a B.C. shipyard.

The St. Stephen has been awaiting the refit ever since her arrival here.

The job will allow her to replace either of the present weather ships, St. Catharines and Stonetown, for a full five-week tour of duty.

Board To Discuss Raises

The Union Board of Health for Victoria and Esquimalt is expected to meet within a week to consider the request of 11 public health nurses employed by the city for higher wages.

The nurses have requested wage increases of $10 a month for the starting "registered nurse" category and $17.50 a month for each of the five professional categories but the city is believed to have opposed any increase.

Present wages range from $226 to $282.50 a month and the increase would set the range from $235 to $300 a month.

City Tug To Return For Repair

The Victoria tug Island Navigator, refloated Monday night after 12 days submerged in Kyuquot Sound will be out of commission for two months, president H. R. Elworthy of the Island Tug & Barge Co. said last night.

The tug will be towed back to Victoria next week and tenders will be called for the repair job soon afterward.

The Navigator was beached after striking a reef 1,000 yards from shore. She was floated Monday by two sister tugs and two heavy lift barges.

Diver Jack Daley had already placed a temporary patch on the two holes in the Navigator's hull, and the tug will be beached this morning to make the job secure.

Mr. Elworthy said acid from batteries removed all paint in the engine room. Spraying of oil to remove salt has begun and new oil burners are being installed to dry the tug.

The refloating job was delayed three times by bad weather.

Tax on Trucks To Pay For Highways Urged

The highway transport industry should bear a greater portion of the cost of maintenance and construction of B.C. highways, an association of railway employees told the provincial government yesterday.

Urging the government to set up a highway transport board for control of the B.C. trucking industry, the B.C. branch of the Canadian Ship-By-Rail Association said a ton-mile or weight-distance tax should be placed on trucks.

In a brief to Public Works Minister P. A. Gagliardi and Attorney-General Robert Bonner, the group said the government collected $24,500,000 in license fees and gasoline tax last year but the outlay for highway upkeep was $19,000,000.

After the meeting, the delegation said its brief was fully discussed by the ministers.

SEPARATE BOARD

Jurisdiction over the trucking industry should be taken from the motor carrier branch of the Public Utilities Commission and turned over to a separate highway transport board, the group said.

It asked for a study of highway use by the trucking industry in BC with a view to "proper allocation of the cost of construction and maintenance of our highways to the users."

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

The association also recommended that:

Truck traffic be banned in the province from midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday.

That loading tail gates be declared illegal and that transports in caravan be required to keep a certain distance apart to permit safe passing by cars.

That speed of loaded trucks be governed by their weight, and Placement of scale facilities at key points throughout the province and provision of highway police with portable scales for spot checks.

The Ship-by-Rail Association is a rail employee welfare body formed in 1931 for benefit of railway workers.

Sidney Author Acclaimed

Rancher and writer R. M. Patterson of Shoal Harbor Road, Sidney, was named author of the best autobiographical book of 1954 by a Pacific Northwest author in the Washington State Press Club's award list issued yesterday.

Another Vancouver Island writer, Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, won an honorable mention for magazine action writing.

Mr. Patterson's "Dangerous River" won him his place of honor.

It is a story of his adventures in the South Nahanni River country, a land of game and grandeur, wild water and wilderness, crags and peaks and canyons. Mr. Patterson's is one of the most vivid contemporary adventure tales.

The book has been published both in the United States and United Kingdom and according to the publisher's reports, is a best-seller in its field.

Saturday Parade Approved

The retail merchants group of the Chamber of Commerce has given its approval of a plan to hold Victoria Empire Day parade on Saturday morning, May 21, provided personnel are available to staff the parade.

The retail merchants group also stated it was in favor of closing stores during the time of the parade and opening them immediately afterwards.

The group's recommendations will be considered by chamber directors Friday at the same time as directors will decide whether or not the chamber will organize the parade.

Quota: 40,000 Doses

Money Can't Buy Vaccine for All

Sufficient Salk vaccine to treat everyone in B.C. will not be available this year even if money is raised to buy it, provincial health department officials said yesterday.

They were commenting on a report that if enough money is raised by the Kinsmen Club anti-polio fund drive sufficient vaccine could be obtained to protect all BC residents.

The 40,000 doses to be given to five and six-year-old children this year are all that BC can have under a continent-wide ration system, officials say. The vaccine for this purpose is being purchased by the government at a cost of $60,000.

MOST SUSCEPTIBLE

The five and six-year-old group is the most susceptible to polio and for this reason it was given priority over all others in the distribution of the provincial quota.

Officials applauded the anti-polio drive opened Monday in Victoria by Premier W. A. C. Bennett. They pointed out however, that "all the money in the world" could not buy more than BC's quota of Salk vaccine this year. In future years when the supply increases, they said, enough may be available for general use.

Federal Health Minister Paul Martin said in Ottawa yesterday that the vaccine has not been used sufficiently for general use. He said he could "only express a great hope for it."

Brigadier To Speak

Brigadier Cyril D. Quilliam, graduate of the British Army staff college and former officer with the Royal Ulster Rifles, will be guest speaker at the Canadian Club's luncheon meeting Thursday in the Empress Hotel.

Brigadier Quilliam will talk on "The Changing Scene in the Middle East and South Africa."

He has spent 30 years in the territory which he will discuss. In 1939 he was deputy chief of military intelligence in Cairo, saw service in the western desert, Greece, East Africa and Italy.

He resigned from the British Army after the war, to become Middle East correspondent of the London Times.

The Canadian Red Cross Society will hold its annual general meeting and election of officers in Red Cross House, 1046 Fort street, Monday at 2:30 p.m.

A full report of the branch activities for the past year will be presented together with a financial statement.

No Purge of Communists For Island Labor Unions

Vancouver Island trade unions affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress and American Federation of Labor will escape an anti-Communist "purge" now in progress in Vancouver.

This was indicated last night by a check of several large and small unions.

It was learned however that the charges of leftist affiliation against about 20 members of the Vancouver local of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers may also be levied against members in other Vancouver unions.

Inquiries in Victoria labor circles disclosed that a trial committee sat in judgment last week end of a member of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CLC), Local 1-217, in Vancouver.

The lone member is accused of being a member of the Communist party.

Results of the trial are not known, but if the charge is proven the member faces certain expulsion from the IWA.

No Price-Fixing Here, Dealers Insist

It's competition that keeps Victoria gasoline prices so close to the same level.

Where there are differences the spread is only in fractions of a cent.

"Price fixing? Nah!" a city dealer exploded. "None of that sort of stuff going on here. The prices are close because we're all fighting for a living."

Jack Hawkes, chairman of the Greater Victoria zone of the Automotive Retailers Association, confirmed the dealer's belief.

The Vancouver branch of the association, the Retail Merchants' Association and 23 gasoline dealers have been charged with operating a price-fixing combine in Vancouver.

They will appear in court January 31.

Mr. Hawkes said he is selling gasoline at his station for 39.8c and 43.4c a gallon for standard and premium grades, respectively.

"Prices vary very little at stations here, maybe only a tenth of a cent a gallon, but there is no fixing," he said.

"The operators watch each other very closely and they have to come down to the lowest price if they want to sell," he added.

He said he had thought the same situation prevailed in Vancouver.

Unwanted Television Aerial Sprouts in Family's Absence

People used to joke about putting the cart before the horse, but R. B. Young, meteorologist, has a more modern version of the phrase.

He got his aerial before he got a TV set—and had ordered neither.

The family was away from home last Friday. When they returned, there was the TV aerial and a hole in the roof.

"No," said Mr. Young last night. "I haven't a television set. I haven't ordered one. But maybe they'll bring it along the next time we're out of the house."

Neighbors saw the installation and gave Mr. Young a vague sort of a clue as to the identity of the responsible firm.

"Really, it's no more than a hunch," said Mr. Young. "Anyway, they'll have a hard time collecting for the job. And what would we want with a hole in the roof if they take the thing away again?"

Here's the key to the puzzle. The anonymous aerial is on the roof at 2784 Dewdney.

Modern Etiquette

BY ROBERTA LEE

Q. Is it considered proper for a bridesmaid to call her friends by telephone to request that they serve as bridesmaids at her wedding?

A. This is really not the proper way she should call on each of her friends personally to make this request. Of course in the case of out-of-town friends a friendly note of request would be in order.

Q. What should I provide for a food at a home christening?

A. A silver bowl usually, but if such is not available, a crystal bowl of cream bowl with a ring of flowers or ivy around it will serve very well.

House Cost To Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation has announced that in some areas it will cost less to build a house in 1955 than it did in 1954 as the agency has reduced mortgage lending values, officials said Tuesday.

The move means a cut from one dollar in four of the amount loaned by the agency on new homes. However, the reduction will not affect the majority of borrowers, the agency said.

The change is not the same throughout the country. For example, the lending value on bungalows has been reduced in 25 communities, raised in eight and left unchanged in 36 others.

Parents Quiet as Young Captured

RCMP Seize Children From Doukhobor Homes

Lightning Raid at Dawn 'Continuation of Policy'

Forty school-age children were routed from their homes in the radical Doukhobor settlement of Krestova early yesterday and taken by RCMP to New Denver, where they will be forced to attend school.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said in Victoria last night the raid is "just a continuation of the government's policy to require school attendance by the Sons of Freedom children.

He declined to say whether there would be any more major raids like the one yesterday, in which some 50 Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen and welfare workers made a lightning-quick raid on the small, ramshackle settlement at dawn, capturing the children.

BIGGEST RAID

It was the first big raid on Krestova, and the largest ever made on a Sons of Freedom settlement.

All Sons of Freedom parents had refused to send their children to school despite the government's renewed drive for attendance.

No resistence was offered when police and welfare workers swooped down on the village. Doukhobor parents stood by quietly while their children were carried away.

It was a strange contrast to the past when rotten tomatoes and rocks were thrown at men who tried to serve notice the children must attend school.

CHILDREN HIDDEN

Police had suspected for some time parents were hiding their children in the village when none could be found in other villages.

They massed from other detachments early yesterday and descended without notice on the sleepy village before it was fully astir.

One welfare official said, "We moved in under the Protection of the Children's Act, giving the Sons no warning we were coming and no chance to hide their children if they planned to do so."

The children were brought to a provincial welfare branch at New Denver. The 22 boys and 18 girls will be sent to school with 34 other Freedomite youngsters taken from their homes in other Doukhobor centres in previous police and government action.

A school bus had been running to Krestova for a week but no children used it. Before this, notices quoting the School Act were tacked up in the village but were torn down the same day.

Several Doukhobors had stood in the streets and jeered at the bus as it went by the past several days.

One parent asked police to wait several minutes while a child ate her breakfast. Police returned to find the child ready to travel to New Denver.

Police said the children rounded weren't the entire youngster population of the mountaintop settlement of the fanatic Russian religious sect.

Before Tuesday, Krestova was the only remaining Freedomite centre where parents hadn't been checked for failure to enroll their children in school.

'King of the Safecrackers'

Army, Church Both Attract Potential Thief

(When the author of these articles was a boy in London, Ont., there was no indication that one day he would switch suddenly from being a minister of the Gospel to being "King of the Safecrackers." Yet that's what happened—that, and much more in a colorful lifetime that has finally brought the writer, having paid for his misdeeds, to a snug cottage right here on Vancouver Island. Yesterday's opening installment told of his boyhood, and his first jobs.)

(Copyright, Canada 1955, by Herbert Emerson Wilson and The Daily Colonist.)

BY HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

When the circus went into winter quarters in New Orleans, I found myself with nothing to do.

My feet were still itchy for travel, and a friend provided the solution. He had a job tending a shipload of mules, bound from the southern States to haul supplies for the British then fighting the Boers in South Africa.

I stowed away aboard his ship—and became a mule-tender, too.

On reaching our destination, I was told that, as a stowaway, I could only go ashore if I volunteered to fight with the British.

Here was more adventure, so I became a soldier.

However, before very long I was captured by the Boers who, having no prison camps, took me along with them wherever they went. They had another prisoner about that time, although I didn't meet him. When he escaped, the Boers pestered me with questions as to where he might have gone. I didn't know.

His name was Churchill.

Finally my captors handed me a saddlebag filled with food—but no horse—and put me on a trail that led to freedom.

HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

The war was about over so, with some others, I was given my discharge and put aboard a ship for London, England.

Called to Palace

There, somewhat to my surprise, we were all summoned to Buckingham Palace and I watched while Queen Victoria pinned medals on my companions.

Then, when I thought it all finished, the little Queen stepped from her dais, walked over to me, and put her hand on my shoulder.

"Bless my dear Canadian boys," she said, and pinned a ribbon on my tunic. That was a memorable day.

In my pocket when I came back to Canada was a little pouch, a souvenir from a Boer store whose owner had been killed, and where my outfit had based for a while in South Africa.

The pouch contained some raw diamonds, and though I had little or no idea of their value, a London, Ont., jeweler bought some of them for enough to set me up in a small business.

My plans for business had grown from watching the operations of a Detroit merchant, as advertised in the papers. As a result, I think I may have been the first to use installment-buying in Canada.

With my capital, I bought some rugs which I could carry on my shoulders. Going from door to door, I sold them for $1 and 25c a week, which I collected during my rounds.

The business prospered until it became necessary to have helpers, and therein came an unusual twist.

London's foremost pawnbroker was one Isaac Levi. With their father's blessing his two sons, Murray and Leo, came to work for me.

"Watch Herbie, boys," the old man urged them. "Watch everything he does, because everything he touches turns to gold."

Active in Church

It was during this period of business prosperity that I became active in church work.

Rev. Herbert McKenzie, just ten years my senior, had founded the Christian Workers' Church, offshoot of the Baptist church but purely an interdenominational, in Hamilton, the goal of which was to work with and for poor people.

So successful was his mission that he decided to open another branch in London. His successor in Hamilton was Rev. Peter Philpott, father of Elmer Philpot, Vancouver columnist and Member of Parliament.

My mother became one of the first members of Mr. McKenzie's congregation, and she soon persuaded me to join in the work. I had a touch for music, and a gift of the gab, so Mr. McKenzie and I would take a portable organ downtown, with one playing and the other preaching alternately.

From this, with the rank of deacon in the church, my interest grew, and my conviction that there was real work to be done for the world's unfortunates.

I sold my business, and opened a sociological mission on London's Whisky Row. Three of the city's leading citizens, Sheriff Cameron, T. B. Escott, a wholesale grocer, and a Mr. Workman, an ironmonger, were major contributors to the mission, and acted as my board of directors.

In Hamilton, Mr. Philpott's church was growing, but so was my mission. Consequently, when he invited me to become his assistant I declined. I didn't want to play second fiddle to anyone.

I wonder what might have happened had I accepted?

Navy, Air Force Called to Rescue

Northern Scotland 'Like The Arctic' As Heaviest Snow Isolates 10,000

WICK, Scotland (Reuters)—Some 10,000 men, women and children facing hunger and cold in the snowy wastes of northern Scotland scanned the skies anxiously Tuesday for planes bringing relief.

The Royal Navy and air force joined in efforts to get food through to whole communities cut off almost a week by the heaviest snowfalls in living memory. Some 5,300 pounds of supplies were distributed to 40 needy centres during the day.

DROP FOOD, MEDICINE

With snow still falling, helicopters flew non-stop over the bleak, sparsely-populated Highlands, dropping food and medicine to villages, hamlets and lonely crofts—small farms.

The 13,000-ton aircraft carrier Glory was on its way north from Glasgow to help in the rescue work with 2,000 gallons of fuel for the helicopters and its bakeries turning out mountains of bread for distribution to the marooned Scots.

Telephone calls from isolated communities seeking urgent help came in all day to this northern town which itself is beginning to suffer some food shortages.

A town official helping to organize aid said "the north of Scotland has become like the Arctic. Nothing like this has been known before."

The snow field—more than 12 feet deep—extends over the counties of Caithness, Sutherland and parts of Ross-shire. About 5,000 persons are estimated to be completely cut off.

Dockyard To Fire 140 as Over-Age

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A total of 140 civilian workers at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt will be discharged this year because they have reached the retirement age of 65.

Defense Minister R. O. Campney told Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, in Commons yesterday that 40 casual workers would be let out February 28 and the other 100 at various times throughout the year.

It has been explained that some of the 140 workers are well over 65 and dockyard employees are kept on past retirement age only when it is difficult to replace them.

Tragedy Mounts

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, father of Dr. Samuel Sheppard, died Tuesday night at Bay View Hospital from a serious respiratory ailment.

He was the third member of his family to die since July 4, the day his daughter-in-law, Marilyn Sheppard, was murdered in her bed.

His wife, Mrs. Ethel Sheppard, 64, committed suicide after their son was convicted of second-degree murder.

Ship Races To Land With Stricken Sailor

HALIFAX (CP)—The cruiser Quebec raced toward Bermuda Tuesday night to land an ill sailor after running into a storm that crushed two of her seaboats and caused her slight machinery difficulty.

The navy here said the Quebec ran into gale conditions after sailing from Halifax Friday for a three-month cruise that will take her around Africa.

Heavy seas crashed across her decks and stove in her starboard and port seaboats and swept her starboard gangplank overboard.

The cruiser altered course Tuesday to land OS John Louis Boula, for hospital treatment for acute appendicitis.

Present Tax Footing Will Be Maintained

OTTAWA (BUP)—Federal-provincial fiscal relations will continue for several years on the present footing, parliamentary sources predicted yesterday.

Members of the government and opposition parties, studying the prime minister's new proposals to iron out double-taxation problems in Quebec province, believed there would be no major upset in any other province.

They said Quebec probably will continue to be the only hold-out against a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

The new plan involved an offer by the federal government to release any other province from its agreement if it wanted to impose a provincial income tax. If it did, taxpayers in the province would get a flat 10 per cent reduction of federal taxes, but the province would forego tax rental payments.

Liberals 'Socialists in Carpet Slippers'

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberals are "the carpet-slipper socialist party in Canada," Rev. E. G. Hansell said Tuesday night in the Commons.

"There is no more dangerous socialist party than the present Liberal party," the Social Credit member for Macleod said during the throne speech debate.

However, he was quick to add that Liberals are not socialists in the sense that the CCF party is socialist.

But the Liberals said "go easy, not so fast." While giving lip service to free enterprise, they bided their time to introduce socialist legislation.

Liberals let the CCF clamor for socialist legislation and then introduced it themselves, he said.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) interjected that was because Liberals "are smart."

Mr. Hansell quoted from a speech in the Commons last week by Elmore Philpott (L-Vancouver South) who had said his cup of jubilation ran over when the Progressive Conservative opposition criticized the government for not introducing a national health insurance plan.

The CCF for years has asked for health insurance.

Mr. Hansell said Mr. Philpott's speech is an example of how the Liberals have become carpet-slipper socialists.

Convicts Warn:

'One Screw Dies For Every Shot'

BOSTON (UP)—Two bazooka teams early today joined the army of police deadlocked in a threatened "battle to the finish" with a group of desperate criminals holding five guards and some fellow inmates hostage in ancient Massachusetts State Prison.

BOSTON (AP) — The leader of four dangerous armed convicts attempting to break out of Massachusetts State Prison sent out a message Tuesday night threatening to kill five guards and six other prisoners held hostage if authorities fired a shot.

Theodore (Teddy) Green, 39, notorious bank robber who boasts no prison is strong enough to hold him, said in a message to warden John J. O'Brien:

"For every shot fired at us, a guard dies. One shot, one gas bomb and one of your screws dies."

O'Brien quoted Green's message as saying if shots are fired at the rebelling convicts "then to hell with what happens from then on."

O'Brien said that no force is planned to subdue the revolt, adding authorities are ready "to wait it out for days if necessary."

BATTLE TO FINISH

Earlier, the rebellion by the four desperate convicts was described by a prison chaplain as apparently "a battle to the finish."

"The prisoners have made one demand—out," Rev. Edward F. Hartigan told reporters after his third visit to the isolated cellblock of the 150-year-old jail where the convicts hold the hostages.

Earlier, the 35-year-old Roman Catholic priest who has been at the prison since 1949, said the hardened, long-term prisoners—described as potential killers—were "not too much afraid of death" in their desperate bid to break out.

The four sent out an ultimatum that they be allowed to walk out of the prison and governor Christian Herter furnish them a car to carry them away "or there'll be fireworks."

USE FLOODLIGHTS

Prison officials, who had said earlier there would be "no deals," disregarded the demand and indicated they were ready to wait out the convicts.

Floodlights were turned on the cellblock at dark some 13 hours after the revolt broke out early in the day.

Police Arrest Two Suspects

Victoria detectives last night arrested two young men and charged them with breaking and entering and possession of stolen goods.

Both men will appear in city court at 10 a.m. today.

Police said some loot of the alleged crimes was recovered.

Reds Rain Bombs On Tachen Islands

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—More than 200 Chinese Communist planes rained several hundred bombs on the Tachen Islands shortly after noon Wednesday, the defense ministry reported.

It was the heaviest raid of the civil war and packed considerably more punch than the air blows that signaled the invasion of nearby Yikiang-Shan Island Tuesday.

Although the ministry didn't say so, the new air strike could be the prelude to an attempted invasion of the Tachens.

The defense ministry said the attacking planes came from Red bases at Shanghai, Ningpo and Hangchow on the Red mainland.

They were an assortment of Russian-type bombers and fighter-bombers, including some jets.

The ministry said Nationalist guerrillas were still fighting at 2 p.m. Wednesday on Yikiang-Shan, eight miles north of the Tachens.

It said the guerrillas were "fighting bravely" against Communist invaders who landed Tuesday.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

WHAT are Canada's national colors? If you say red, white and blue, you're wrong.

Cy Burley asked the boys of his 115th Battery cadet corps this question, in the course of their training. None of them knew.

Mr. Burley thereupon set himself up as a one-man board of enquiry into the people's knowledge of Canadiana. He had the boys ask a number of grown-ups about the national colors. He himself went around asking.

He found only one person out of several hundred who knew the correct answer. The knowledgeable one was a girl in his own office—and she couldn't remember where she had gathered the information.

Canada's colors are derived from her national emblem, three red maple leaves on one stalk, against a white background. Therefore Canada's national colors are red and white.

So says Mr. Birley. His information is drawn from his manual of cadet corps training, a Dominion government book.

And if we can't believe the Dominion government, whom can we believe? Anyone who has an answer to that question will keep it to himself, if he knows what's good for him.

Ice-Cycles people are looking for talent in Victoria, as they look for it everywhere. They want skaters aged 18 to 22 to try out Friday for possible jobs.

Scouts for the big show want to see all contenders given a chance. Privately, however, they wish that all young hopefuls would take a long, cold look at themselves before donning skates at the try-out.

It's no use for a girl to try out if she is 25 pounds overweight, or if she has (let's put it bluntly) knock knees. No matter how lovable she is, no matter how sweet her personality, she won't make the show.

It also helps if the contender can skate a little. She doesn't have to be a crackerjack. The show trains its skaters in its own way. But looks and figure count first, ability second. That's the way things go in this harsh world.

Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, however, spare some sympathy for people like me, who have knock knees and are no good on skates into the bargain. (Not much good off skates, either.) So count your blessings.

Man complains that certain stores, after a red-hot pre-Christmas campaign to sell toys, have now cooled off in their attitude toward the nursery set.

He says (try to choke back your rage when you hear this, men) that the stores shrug off orders for certain toys," and suggest that their customers come back next Christmas.

My informant didn't specify just what toys he was looking for. But it seems mighty unfair to me that some poor kid has to go without his atomic death-ray gun or his scale model guillotine for a whole year just because some toy merchant has settled down for a snooze in a rocking-horse and is too lazy to get up.

It's my duty to remind the merchants that Santa keeps watch on them all year round. If they are good boys, they get the trade next Christmas. If they are bad, the old gentleman spanks them in the pocketbook and sends them to bed with a big surplus of unsold toys.

Backers Believed Known

A Vancouver syndicate headed by Coleman E. Hall, sports promoter and hotel owner, and A. Donald Lauder, investment broker, is believed behind the offer of a reported $1,800,000 for the Growers' Wine Company here.

But Herbert Anscomb, managing director, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

"I know nothing about it," he insisted last night.

General Victor Odlum, of the firm of Odlum, Brown & Company, disclosed January 1 his firm proposed to buy the wine company for undisclosed clients.

NO CONFIRMATION

Reliable reports in Vancouver last night said the Hall-Lauder team was behind the deal. But the story could not be confirmed on the Mainland or in Victoria.

The offered price, which works out at $4.90 a share, was more than twice the value at which shares had been trading. Last summer the stock was as low as $1.65.

But as soon as the bid for the company became known, there were plenty of buyers at $4. Nobody was selling.

Majority of the 367,210 shares are understood to be in the hands of directors and officials of the company.

John Peden is president.

One Police-Fire Force

Double-Duty Plan To Be Discussed

Negotiations on a suggested amalgamation of the police and fire departments in Esquimalt will begin Thursday.

The amalgamation would combine the seven policemen and three firemen into one force under Gilbert Stancombe, present police chief. Each man would be trained for both police and fire duties.

Reaction of the policemen and firemen to the plan is reported to be lukewarm.

Amalgamation was discussed a year ago but did not receive serious consideration. Instead, firemen were appointed special constables, partly to avoid an increase in staff.

Municipal authorities hope amalgamation this year will again avoid a staff increase, but one worker felt "they may have to hire a couple of men."

Complicating the situation is the fact that policemen recently submitted their requests for 1955 contract changes, including a request for a wage increase to bring pay schedules into line with Victoria.

The amalgamation proposal and the police requests will be discussed when the police commission and the municipal fire and lights committee meet with police and fire department union leaders Thursday.

Hours of work for firemen would be cut from 44 to 40 a week under amalgamation. Wages would be unchanged or slightly increased. Police wages and hours probably would not change.

However, the full effect of amalgamation will not be known until after Thursday's discussions.

Make Charges Clear, Fired Unionist Demands

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Gee, suspended last week end as business agent of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) for alleged communist activities, Tuesday night demanded that the charges against him be released.

In a prepared statement, Gee said the charges should have been read to a closed membership meeting of the union Monday night.

He challenged the officials who filed a complaint to the IBEW international headquarters which resulted in his ouster, "to let the membership vote on whether charges should be laid."

"This is the business of the membership, not the public," he said.

"I will fight this thing until I prove I'm in the clear. And I will, if given a fair trial. My record in the trade union movement is an open book."

Gee said one of the charges against him dealt with his attendance at the U.S. Canadian border Peace Arch "to hear Paul Robeson sing."

"So that makes 20,000 other people Communists, I suppose," he said.

Two paid employees and 17 rank-and-file members were also suspended by the union for allegedly working toward the "leftist cause."

Bert Marcuse, a non-member advisor, was dismissed from his position as research director. An appointed member, business agent Art Goy, was also listed as "fired" by the investigators.

Marcuse said he received a telegram from Alfred Terry, one of the two investigators, informing him his services were no longer required. He said there was no explanation given.

Union officials say there are no charges against Marcuse and Goy.

Charges of leftist activity were laid, however, against Gee and assistant Don Wilson, the two paid employees.

All face expulsion if charges against them are proved before a trial of Canadian and U.S. officials.

Railways Get Credit For Living Standard

Railways have helped more than all other factors combined to give Canada the highest standard of living in the world, Douglas C. Hartley, Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway superintendent, said last night.

Addressing the Victoria branch, National Office Management Association, Mr. Hartley said he believed it is beyond dispute that the country generally cannot be prosperous unless the railways are prosperous.

Railways have helped reduce transportation costs, and luxuries, taken for granted, would be available in small numbers if there were no links of steel, he said.

Mr. Hartley warned that railways must have an adequate return to make their "proper and utmost contribution" to the national welfare.

Mr. Hartley detailed the millions of dollars of annual expenditures by the Canadian Pacific Railway for rail and car equipment, fuel and other maintenance needs. He added that the cost of living is as real to railways as it is to everyone else.

Like other businesses, railways are selling a service. But railways are more regulated by law for the common good than any other business.

"Even government, the so-called servant of the people, has greater freedom in dealing with the public, and in the charges it makes for its services, than have the railways," he said.

Gulf Islands Franchise

Ferries To Compete

Bids will be asked at the end of this year for the Gulf Islands ferry franchise, Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi said yesterday.

He called the step normal procedure. The subsidy to Gulf Islands Ferry Co. and the company's contract expire December 31, 1955.

Mr. Gaglardi, who said withdrawal of the subsidy is under consideration, added that "if a non-subsidized service is offered to us, it would be very seriously considered."

Black Ball Lines, Coast Ferries Ltd. and the Gulf Islands Co. would be expected to bid for the franchise.

Black Ball and Coast Ferries favor a non-subsidized service linking the islands with either Vancouver Island or the Mainland. Gulf Islands Ferry Co. would continue present service.

Black Ball Lines has surveyed ferry needs in the area as a result of withdrawal of CPR service, which opened the way for Gulf Islands service and the operation by Coast Ferries of the Lady Rose between island points and Steveston.

The Lady Rose may be withdrawn unless the Gulf Islands subsidy is eliminated. The subsidy is $24,000 and is to be increased by $12,000 when wharves at Crofton and Vesuvius Bay are completed about Easter.

Banks Have 'Pen Money'

The Canadian banking system is nothing but a "fountain pen money system," similar to that advocated by Social Credit, Alberta's Attorney-General Lucien Maynard said at the Crystal Garden last night.

Mr. Maynard is in Victoria to conduct study periods in banking based on a brief he presented to the parliamentary select standing committee on banking and commerce at Ottawa last spring.

Tonight's discussion is: "What is wrong with the banking system?" Thursday night the Social Crediters will outline their remedies.

Mr. Maynard last night reviewed the development of banking from its start in Italy.

"Today the bulk of money in circulation is bank credit," he said. "Your chartered banks operate a gigantic accounting system, and it is nothing but a fountain pen system."

He added that the Social Credit theory is to issue bank credit the same as the cartered banks are doing now.

Board Passes X-Ray Plan

A chest X-ray program providing for examination of secondary school students, teachers, school stenographers and janitors in the Victoria area, has been approved by the Greater Victoria School Board.

The program will be conducted by medical officers throughout the school district. A mobile X-ray unit will visit the various schools.

The board was informed that 155 cases of measles were reported in the Victoria-Esquimalt area between December 21 and January 17, of which 71 were school children. There were 69 cases of measles and 14 cases of chickenpox reported in Saanich schools in December.

Satisfactory continuation of the program of immunization against diphtheria and tetanus was reported in Greater Victoria schools.

Garden Notes

Expert Advice Seems Wrong

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

For years now, I have always taken cuttings of black and red currants in the autumn. The book says that is the time to do the job, and I've always gone along with it, figuring that the experts must know what they are talking about, but I've never felt quite satisfied about it.

It just didn't seem quite natural to expect a cutting to put forth vigorous roots at a time when the plant is approaching a state of dormancy. The soil, too, is beginning to cool off in October, and by the time the baby roots are formed, the ground is definitely cold and usually soggy wet—sometimes even frozen.

On top of this, everybody knows that the leaves of a cutting play an important part in the production of roots, and while currant cuttings may have leaves on them when they are inserted in the autumn, they don't last very long, and are usually gone within a week or two.

LONG STANDSTILL

The system worked, after a fashion, and I've usually managed to strike about 50 per cent of the cuttings inserted, but they seemed to stand still all through the spring, when everything else were growing vigorously, and they never really got going properly until midsummer.

Last year, I decided to throw away the book and try taking the currant cuttings in the spring, just to see what would happen. The varieties were Boskoop Giant and Red Lake.

The cuttings were taken in early May, selecting shoots of the previous season's growth, about a foot long, and with about an inch of old wood attached. The ends of these were moistened and dipped in Rootone hormone rooting powder, the excess shapen off, and the cuttings inserted in a bed of rather sandy soil in a shady part of the garden, and watered in. They were, of course, in full leaf, and growing vigorously when cut off the parent plant.

NEVER STOPPED

The results were really surprising. I can honestly say that these spring cuttings never seemed to stop growing at all. They never looked back, and never lost their freshness. By early September, they were big enough to pinch out the growing tip, encouraging them to branch a little during the fall, and fixing them up all ready to spring into action as soon as the pulse of spring awakens them.

These cuttings, taken last May, are now nice little bushes, 18 to 24 inches high, and I think they will probably bear a little fruit this year.

I'll grant you that the weather was exceptional last summer, and it was seldom necessary to water the bed of cuttings, and I have to admit that the leaves of the currant cuttings were sprayed every second week with weak soluble fertilizer, but even at that, growth was amazing, and I figure I am a whole year ahead of the game through this unconventional treatment.

Trouble Seen In Okanagan

KELOWNA, B.C.(CP)—Overproduction of fruit is causing concern in the Okanagan's $25,000,000 industry.

A blunt warning that production will just about reach the saturation point by 1960 was issued yesterday by A. R. Garrish, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, at the opening session of the organization's annual three-day convention.

Schools Need 30 Teachers

A preliminary survey of staff requirements for September indicates that some 30 additional teachers will be needed, John Gough, municipal inspector of schools, reported Monday to the Greater Victoria School Board.

About one-half of the new teachers will be required at the elementary level, the remainder at the secondary school level.

'King of the Safecrackers'

Army, Church Both Attract Potential Thief

(When the author of these articles was a boy in London, Ont., there was no indication that one day he would switch suddenly from being a minister of the Gospel to being "King of the Safecrackers." Yet that's what happened—that, and much more in a colorful lifetime that has finally brought the writer, having paid for his misdeeds, to a snug cottage right here on Vancouver Island. Yesterday's opening installment told of his boyhood, and his first jobs.)

(Copyright, Canada 1955, by Herbert Emerson Wilson and The Daily Colonist.)

BY HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

When the circus went into winter quarters in New Orleans, I found myself with nothing to do.

My feet were still itchy for travel, and a friend provided the solution. He had a job tending a shipload of mules, bound from the southern States to haul supplies for the British then fighting the Boers in South Africa.

I stowed away aboard his ship—and became a mule-tender, too.

On reaching our destination, I was told that, as a stowaway, I could only go ashore if I volunteered to fight with the British.

Here was more adventure, so I became a soldier.

However, before very long I was captured by the Boers who, having no prison camps, took me along with them wherever they went. They had another prisoner about that time, although I didn't meet him. When he escaped, the Boers pestered me with questions as to where he might have gone. I didn't know.

His name was Churchill.

Finally my captors handed me a saddlebag filled with food—but no horse—and put me on a trail that led to freedom.

HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

The war was about over so, with some others, I was given my discharge and put aboard a ship for London, England.

Called to Palace

There, somewhat to my surprise, we were all summoned to Buckingham Palace and I watched while Queen Victoria pinned medals on my companions.

Then, when I thought it all finished, the little Queen stepped from her dais, walked over to me, and put her hand on my shoulder.

"Bless my dear Canadian boys," she said, and pinned a ribbon on my tunic. That was a memorable day.

In my pocket when I came back to Canada was a little pouch, a souvenir from a Boer store whose owner had been killed, and where my outfit had based for a while in South Africa.

The pouch contained some raw diamonds, and though I had little or no idea of their value, a London, Ont., jeweler bought some of them for enough to set me up in a small business.

My plans for business had grown from watching the operations of a Detroit merchant, as advertised in the papers. As a result, I think I may have been the first to use installment-buying in Canada.

With my capital, I bought some rugs which I could carry on my shoulders. Going from door to door, I sold them for $1 and 25c a week, which I collected during my rounds.

The business prospered until it became necessary to have helpers, and therein came an unusual twist.

London's foremost pawnbroker was one Isaac Levi. With their father's blessing his two sons, Murray and Leo, came to work for me.

"Watch Herbie, boys," the old man urged them. "Watch everything he does, because everything he touches turns to gold."

Active in Church

It was during this period of business prosperity that I became active in church work.

Rev. Herbert McKenzie, just ten years my senior, had founded the Christian Workers' Church, offshoot of the Baptist church but purely an interdenominational, in Hamilton, the goal of which was to work with and for poor people.

So successful was his mission that he decided to open another branch in London. His successor in Hamilton was Rev. Peter Philpott, father of Elmer Philpot, Vancouver columnist and Member of Parliament.

My mother became one of the first members of Mr. McKenzie's congregation, and she soon persuaded me to join in the work. I had a touch for music, and a gift of the gab, so Mr. McKenzie and I would take a portable organ downtown, with one playing and the other preaching alternately.

From this, with the rank of deacon in the church, my interest grew, and my conviction that there was real work to be done for the world's unfortunates.

I sold my business, and opened a sociological mission on London's Whisky Row. Three of the city's leading citizens, Sheriff Cameron, T. B. Escott, a wholesale grocer, and a Mr. Workman, an ironmonger, were major contributors to the mission, and acted as my board of directors.

In Hamilton, Mr. Philpott's church was growing, but so was my mission. Consequently, when he invited me to become his assistant I declined. I didn't want to play second fiddle to anyone.

I wonder what might have happened had I accepted?

Police Capture Forty Truants

Swoop on Doukhobors 'Continuation of Policy'

Forty school-age children were routed from their homes in the radical Doukhobor settlement of Krestova early yesterday and taken by RCMP to New Denver, where they will be forced to attend school.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said in Victoria last night the raid is "just a continuation of the government's policy to require school attendance by the Sons of Freedom children.

He declined to say whether there would be any more major raids like the one yesterday, in which some 50 Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen and welfare workers made a lightning-quick raid on the small, ramshackle settlement at dawn, capturing the children.

BIGGEST RAID

It was the first big raid on Krestova, and the largest ever made on a Sons of Freedom settlement.

All Sons of Freedom parents had refused to send their children to school despite the government's renewed drive for attendance.

No resistence was offered when police and welfare workers swooped down on the village. Doukhobor parents stood by quietly while their children were carried away.

It was a strange contrast to the past when rotten tomatoes and rocks were thrown at men who tried to serve notice the children must attend school.

CHILDREN HIDDEN

Police had suspected for some time parents were hiding their children in the village when none could be found in other villages.

They massed from other detachments early yesterday and descended without notice on the sleepy village before it was fully astir.

One welfare official said, "We moved in under the Protection of the Children's Act, giving the Sons no warning we were coming and no chance to hide their children if they planned to do so."

The children were brought to a provincial welfare branch at New Denver. The 22 boys and 18 girls will be sent to school with 34 other Freedomite youngsters taken from their homes in other Doukhobor centres in previous police and government action.

A school bus had been running to Krestova for a week but no children used it. Before this, notices quoting the School Act were tacked up in the village but were torn down the same day.

Several Doukhobors had stood in the streets and jeered at the bus as it went by the past several days.

One parent asked police to wait several minutes while a child ate her breakfast. Police returned to find the child ready to travel to New Denver.

Police said the children rounded up weren't the entire youngster population of the mountain-top settlement of the fanatic Russian religious sect.

Before Tuesday, Krestova was the only remaining Freedomite centre where parents hadn't been checked for failure to enroll their children in school.

Navy, Air Force Called to Rescue

Northern Scotland 'Like The Arctic' As Heaviest Snow Isolates 10,000

WICK, Scotland (Reuters)—Some 10,000 men, women and children facing hunger and cold in the snowy wastes of northern Scotland scanned the skies anxiously Tuesday for planes bringing relief.

The Royal Navy and air force joined in efforts to get food through to whole communities cut off almost a week by the heaviest snowfalls in living memory. Some 5,300 pounds of supplies were distributed to 40 needy centres during the day.

DROP FOOD, MEDICINE

With snow still falling, helicopters flew non-stop over the bleak, sparsely-populated Highlands, dropping food and medicine to villages, hamlets and lonely crofts—small farms.

The 13,000-ton aircraft carrier Glory was on its way north from Glasgow to help in the rescue work with 2,000 gallons of fuel for the helicopters and its bakeries turning out mountains of bread for distribution to the marooned Scots.

Telephone calls from isolated communities seeking urgent help came in all day to this northern town which itself is beginning to suffer some food shortages.

A town official helping to organize aid said "the north of Scotland has become like the Arctic. Nothing like this has been known before."

The snow field—more than 12 feet deep—extends over the counties of Caithness, Sutherland and parts of Ross-shire. About 5,000 persons are estimated to be completely cut off.

Dockyard To Fire 140 as Over-Age

BY TOM GREEN

Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A total of 140 civilian workers at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt will be discharged this year because they have reached the retirement age of 65.

Defense Minister R. O. Campney told Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, in Commons yesterday that 40 casual workers would be let out February 28 and the other 100 at various times throughout the year.

It has been explained that some of the 140 workers are well over 65 and dockyard employees are kept on past retirement age only when it is difficult to replace them.

Tragedy Mounts

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, father of Dr. Samuel Sheppard, died Tuesday night at Bay View Hospital from a serious respiratory ailment.

He was the third member of his family to die since July 4, the day his daughter-in-law, Marilyn Sheppard, was murdered in her bed.

His wife, Mrs. Ethel Sheppard, 64, committed suicide after their son was convicted of second-degree murder.

Ship Races To Land With Stricken Sailor

HALIFAX (CP)—The cruiser Quebec raced toward Bermuda Tuesday night to land an ill sailor after running into a storm that crushed two of her seaboats and caused her slight machinery difficulty.

The navy here said the Quebec ran into gale conditions after sailing from Halifax Friday for a three-month cruise that will take her around Africa.

Heavy seas crashed across her decks and stove in her starboard and port seaboats and swept her starboard gangplank overboard.

The cruiser altered course Tuesday to land OS John Louis Boulay for hospital treatment for acute appendicitis.

Present Tax Footing Will Be Maintained

OTTAWA (BUP) — Federal-provincial fiscal relations will continue for several years on the present footing, parliamentary sources predicted yesterday.

Members of the government and opposition parties, studying the prime minister's new proposals to iron out double-taxation problems in Quebec province, believed there would be no major upset in any other province.

They said Quebec probably will continue to be the only hold-out against a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

The new plan involved an offer by the federal government to release any other province from its agreement if it wanted to impose a provincial income tax. If it did, taxpayers in the province would get a flat 10 per cent reduction of federal taxes, but the province would forego tax rental payments.

Convicts Warn:

'One Screw Dies For Every Shot'

BOSTON (UP)—Two bazooka teams early today joined the army of police deadlocked in a threatened "battle to the finish" with a group of desperate criminals holding five guards and some fellow inmates hostage in ancient Massachusetts State Prison.

BOSTON (AP) — The leader of four dangerous armed convicts attempting to break out of Massachusetts State Prison sent out a message Tuesday night threatening to kill five guards and six other prisoners held hostage if authorities fired a shot.

Theodore (Teddy) Green, 39, notorious bank robber who boasts no prison is strong enough to hold him, said in a message to warden John J. O'Brien:

"For every shot fired at us, a guard dies. One shot, one gas bomb and one of your screws dies."

O'Brien quoted Green's message as saying if shots are fired at the rebelling convicts "then to hell with what happens from then on."

O'Brien said that no force is planned to subdue the revolt, adding authorities are ready "to wait it out for days if necessary."

Earlier, the rebellion by the four desperate convicts was described by a prison chaplain as apparently "a battle to the finish."

"The prisoners have made one demand—out," Rev. Edward F. Hartigan told reporters after his third visit to the isolated cellblock of the 150-year-old jail where the convicts hold the hostages.

Earlier, the 35-year-old Roman Catholic priest who has been at the prison since 1949, said the hardened, long-term prisoners—described as potential killers—were "not too much afraid of death" in their desperate bid to break out.

The four sent out an ultimatum that they be allowed to walk out of the prison and governor Christian Herter furnish them a car to carry them away "or there'll be fireworks."

Prison officials, who had said earlier there would be "no deals," disregarded the demand and indicated they were ready to wait out the convicts.

Floodlights were turned on the cellblock at dark some 13 hours after the revolt broke out early in the day.

Police Arrest Two Suspects

Victoria detectives last night arrested two young men and charged them with breaking and entering, and possession of stolen goods.

Both men will appear in city court at 10 a.m. today.

Police said some loot of the alleged crimes was recovered.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

WHAT are Canada's national colors? If you say red, white and blue, you're wrong.

Cy Burley asked the boys of his 115th Battery cadet corps this question, in the course of their training. None of them knew.

Mr. Burley thereupon set himself up as a one-man board of enquiry into the people's knowledge of Canadiana. He had the boys ask a number of grown-ups about the national colors. He himself went around asking.

He found only one person out of several hundred who knew the correct answer. The knowledgeable one was a girl in his own office—and she couldn't remember where she had gathered the information.

Canada's colors are derived from her national emblem, three red maple leaves on one stalk, against a white background. Therefore Canada's national colors are red and white.

So says Mr. Birley. His information is drawn from his manual of cadet corps training, a Dominion government book.

And if we can't believe the Dominion government, whom can we believe? Anyone who has an answer to that question will keep it to himself, if he knows what's good for him.

Ice-Cycles people are looking for talent in Victoria, as they look for it everywhere. They want skaters aged 18 to 22 to try out Friday for possible jobs.

Scouts for the big show want to see all contenders given a chance. Privately, however, they wish that all young hopefuls would take a long, cold look at themselves before donning skates at the try-out.

It's no use for a girl to try out if she is 25 pounds overweight, or if she has (let's put it bluntly) knock knees. No matter how lovable she is, no matter how sweet her personality, she won't make the show.

It also helps if the contender can skate a little. She doesn't have to be a crackerjack. The show trains its skaters in its own way. But looks and figure count first, ability second. That's the way things go in this harsh world.

Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, however, spare some sympathy for people like me, who have knock knees and are no good on skates into the bargain. (Not much good off skates, either.) So count your blessings.

Man complains that certain stores, after a red-hot pre-Christmas campaign to sell toys, have now cooled off in their attitude toward the nursery set.

He says (try to choke back your rage when you hear this, men) that the stores shrug off orders for certain toys, and suggest that their customers come back next Christmas.

My informant didn't specify just what toys he was looking for. But it seems mighty unfair to me that some poor kid has to go without his atomic death-ray gun or his scale model guillotine for a whole year just because some toy merchant has settled down for a snooze in a rocking-horse and is too lazy to get up.

It's my duty to remind the merchants that Santa keeps watch on them all year round. If they are good boys, they get the trade next Christmas. If they are bad, the old gentleman spanks them in the pocketbook and sends them to bed with a big surplus of unsold toys.

Backers Believed Known

A Vancouver syndicate headed by Coleman E. Hall, sports promoter and hotel owner, and A. Donald Lauder, investment broker, is believed behind the offer of a reported $1,800,000 for the Growers' Wine Company here.

But Herbert Anscomb, managing director, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

"I know nothing about it," he insisted last night.

General Victor Odlum, of the firm of Odlum, Brown & Company, disclosed January 1 his firm proposed to buy the wine company for undisclosed clients.

NO CONFIRMATION

Reliable reports in Vancouver last night said the Hall-Lauder team was behind the deal. But the story could not be confirmed on the Mainland or in Victoria.

The offered price, which works out at $4.90 a share, was more than twice the value at which shares had been trading. Last summer the stock was as low as $1.65.

But as soon as the bid for the company became known, there were plenty of buyers at $4. Nobody was selling.

Majority of the 367,210 shares are understood to be in the hands of directors and officials of the company.

John Peden is president.

One Police-Fire Force

Double-Duty Plan To Be Discussed

Negotiations on a suggested amalgamation of the police and fire departments in Esquimalt will begin Thursday.

The amalgamation would combine the seven policemen and three firemen into one force under Gilbert Stancombe, present police chief. Each man would be trained for both police and fire duties.

Reaction of the policemen and firemen to the plan is reported to be lukewarm.

Amalgamation was discussed a year ago but did not receive serious consideration. Instead, firemen were appointed special constables, partly to avoid an increase in staff.

Municipal authorities hope amalgamation this year will again avoid a staff increase, but one worker felt "they may have to hire a couple of men."

Complicating the situation is the fact that policemen recently submitted their requests for 1955 contract changes, including a request for a wage increase to bring pay schedules into line with Victoria.

The amalgamation proposal and the police requests will be discussed when the police commission and the municipal fire and lights committee meet police and fire department union leaders Thursday.

Hours of work for firemen would be cut from 44 to 40 a week under amalgamation. Wages would be unchanged or slightly increased. Police wages and hours probably would not change.

However, the full effect of amalgamation will not be known until after Thursday's discussions.

Make Charges Clear, Fired Unionist Demands

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Gee, suspended last week end as business agent of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) for alleged communist activities, Tuesday night demanded that the charges against him be released.

In a prepared statement, Gee said the charges should have been read to a closed membership meeting of the union Monday night.

He challenged the officials who filed a complaint to the IBEW international headquarters which resulted in his ouster, "to let the membership vote on whether charges should be laid."

"This is the business of the membership, not the public," he said.

"I will fight this thing until I prove I'm in the clear. And I will, if given a fair trial. My record in the trade union movement is an open book."

Gee said one of the charges against him dealt with his attendance at the U.S. Canadian border Peace Arch "to hear Paul Robeson sing."

"So that makes 20,000 other people Communists, I suppose," he said.

Two paid employees and 17 rank-and-file members were also suspended by the union for allegedly working toward the "leftist cause."

Bert Marcuse, a non-member advisor, was dismissed from his position as research director. An appointed member, business agent Art Goy, was also listed as "fired"—by the investigators.

Marcuse said he received a telegram from Alfred Terry, one of the two investigators, informing him his services were no longer required. He said there was no explanation given.

Union officials say there are no charges against Marcuse and Goy.

Charges of leftist activity were laid, however, against Gee and assistant Don Wilson, the two paid employees.

All face expulsion if charges against them are proved before a trial of Canadian and U.S. officials.

Railways Get Credit For Living Standard

Railways have helped more than all other factors combined to give Canada the highest standard of living in the world, Douglas C. Hartley, Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway superintendent, said last night.

Addressing the Victoria branch, National Office Management Association, Mr. Hartley said he believed it is beyond dispute that the country generally cannot be prosperous unless the railways are prosperous.

Railways have helped reduce transportation costs, and luxuries, taken for granted, would be available in small numbers if there were no links of steel, he said.

Mr. Hartley warned that railways must have an adequate return to make their "proper and utmost contribution" to the national welfare.

Mr. Hartley detailed the millions of dollars of annual expenditures by the Canadian Pacific Railway for rail and car equipment, fuel and other maintenance needs. He added that the cost of living is as real to railways as it is to everyone else.

Like other businesses, railways are selling a service. But railways are more regulated by law for the common good than any other business.

"Even government, the so-called servant of the people, has greater freedom in dealing with the public, and in the charges it makes for its services, than have the railways," he said.

Gulf Islands Franchise

Ferries To Compete

Bids will be asked at the end of this year for the Gulf Islands ferry franchise, Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi said yesterday.

He called the step normal procedure. The subsidy to Gulf Islands Ferry Co. and the company's contract expire December 31, 1955.

Mr. Gaglardi, who said withdrawal of the subsidy is under consideration, added that "if a non-subsidized service is offered to us, it would be very seriously considered."

Black Ball Lines, Coast Ferries Ltd. and the Gulf Islands Co. would be expected to bid for the franchise.

Black Ball and Coast Ferries favor a non-subsidized service linking the islands with either Vancouver Island or the Mainland. Gulf Islands Ferry Co. would continue present service.

Black Ball Lines has surveyed ferry needs in the area as a result of withdrawal of CPR service, which opened the way for Gulf Islands service and the operation by Coast Ferries of the Lady Rose between island points and Steveston.

The Lady Rose may be withdrawn unless the Gulf Islands subsidy is eliminated. The subsidy is $23,000 and is to be increased by $12,000 when wharves at Crofton and Vesuvius Bay are completed about Easter.

Board Passes X-Ray Plan

A chest X-ray program providing for examination of secondary school students, teachers, school stenographers and janitors in the Victoria area, has been approved by the Greater Victoria School Board.

The program will be conducted by medical officers throughout the school district. A mobile X-ray unit will visit the various schools.

The board was informed that 155 cases of measles were reported in the Victoria-Esquimalt area between December 21 and January 17, of which 71 were school children. There were 69 cases of measles and 14 cases of chickenpox reported in Saanich schools in December.

Satisfactory continuation of the program of immunization against diphtheria and tetanus was reported in Greater Victoria schools.

Banks Have 'Pen Money'

The Canadian banking system is nothing but a "fountain pen money system," similar to that advocated by Social Credit, Alberta's Attorney-General Lucien Maynard said at the Crystal Garden last night.

Mr. Maynard is in Victoria to conduct study periods in banking based on a brief he presented to the parliamentary select standing committee on banking and commerce at Ottawa last spring.

Tonight's discussion is: "What is wrong with the banking system?" Thursday night the Social Crediters will outline their remedies.

Mr. Maynard last night reviewed the development of banking from its start in Italy.

"Today the bulk of money in circulation is bank credit," he said. "Your chartered banks operate a gigantic accounting system, and it is nothing but a fountain pen system."

He added that the Social Credit theory is to issue bank credit the same as the cartered banks are doing now.

Expert Advice Seems Wrong

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

For years now, I have always taken cuttings of black and red currants in the autumn. The book says that is the time to do the job, and I've always gone along with it, figuring that the experts must know what they are talking about, but I've never felt quite satisfied about it.

It just didn't seem quite natural to expect a cutting to put forth vigorous roots at a time when the plant is approaching a state of dormancy. The soil, too, is beginning to cool off in October, and by the time the baby roots are formed, the ground is definitely cold and usually soggy wet—sometimes even frozen.

On top of this, everybody knows that the leaves of a cutting play an important part in the production of roots, and while currant cuttings may have leaves on them when they are inserted in the autumn, they don't last very long, and are usually gone within a week or two.

LONG STANDSTILL

The system worked, after a fashion, and I've usually managed to strike about 50 per cent of the cuttings inserted, but they seemed to stand still all through the spring, when everything else were growing vigorously, and they never really got going properly until midsummer.

Last year, I decided to throw away the book and try taking the currant cuttings in the spring, just to see what would happen. The varieties were Boskoop Giant and Red Lake.

The cuttings were taken in early May, selecting shoots of the previous season's growth, about a foot long, and with about an inch of old wood attached. The ends of these were moistened and dipped in Rootone hormone rooting powder, the excess shapen off, and the cuttings inserted in a bed of rather sandy soil in a shady part of the garden, and watered in. They were, of course, in full leaf, and growing vigorously when cut off the parent plant.

NEVER STOPPED

The results were really surprising. I can honestly say that these spring cuttings never seemed to stop growing at all. They never looked back, and never lost their freshness. By early September, they were big enough to pinch out the growing tip, encouraging them to branch a little during the fall, and fixing them up all ready to spring into action as soon as the pulse of spring awakens them.

These cuttings, taken last May, are now nice little bushes, 18 to 24 inches high, and I think they will probably bear a little fruit this year.

I'll grant you that the weather was exceptional last summer, and it was seldom necessary to water the bed of cuttings, and I have to admit that the leaves of the currant cuttings were sprayed every second week with weak soluble fertilizer, but even at that, growth was amazing, and I figure I am a whole year ahead of the game through this unconventional treatment.

Trouble Seen In Okanagan

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Overproduction of fruit is causing concern in the Okanagan's $25,000,000 industry.

A blunt warning that production will just about reach the saturation point by 1960 was issued yesterday by A. R. Garrish, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, at the opening session of the organization's annual three-day convention.

Schools Need 30 Teachers

A preliminary survey of staff requirements for September indicates that some 30 additional teachers will be needed, John Gough, municipal inspector of schools, reported Monday to the Greater Victoria School Board.

About one-half of the new teachers will be required at the elementary level, the remainder at the secondary school level.
